Camp Sherman Hasty Team rescues PCT hiker

On Thursday, June 16, five members of the Camp Sherman Hasty Team responded to Carl Lake in the Mt. Jefferson Wilderness area to locate a lost Pacific Crest Trail (PCT) hiker. Alison Sterley of Anchorage, Alaska was located north and east of Carl Lake.

Sterley told team members that her cell phone, which she was using for navigation, had died and the snow on the PCT had forced her down. Sterley used her DeLorme satellite device to contact search and rescue.

Increase in airport activity irks some neighbors

By Jim Cornelius
News Editor

Competing values are tangled in a dogfight over Sisters Eagle Airport. A revitalized airport is seeing increased flights and thriving business activity that spurs the local economy. But some local residents are feeling that all that activity is coming at the expense of their tranquility.

In recent weeks, there has been an uptick in complaints from neighbors about the noise from planes — takeoffs

Wrestling with multi-family housing

City of Sisters planners and developer Hayden Homes are trying to determine the future of a portion of Hayden's housing development at the west end of town.

The public hearing regarding Hayden Homes' request for a modification to their 2005 Master Plan of Village at Cold Springs was continued until Wednesday, June 29 at 5:30 p.m. at City Hall.

At their meeting last Thursday, the Sisters Planning Commission considered Hayden's request to withdraw the developed western portion of Village at Cold Springs from the remaining undeveloped 18.37 acres of the development.

Hayden would like to have the modification approved to make the completed housing area a stand-alone development. The developed portion consists of 119 single-family parcels, 4.2 acres of open space, and 5.73 acres of right-of-way.

Trying to build the plan proposed in 2005 for the 18-plus acres left would probably be impossible with the current codes in place. If the modification is approved, Hayden could submit a new master plan for the 18 plan acres, which would eliminate the confusion now surrounding the property.

In 1999, the area encompassing Village at Cold Springs was annexed into the city and zoned high-density residential. In 2004,

Spring recital entertains hundreds

Eleanor Roosevelt once said, "The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams." And over 120 talented dancers, ages 2-19, proved just that through their extraordinary performances at Sisters Dance Academy's annual spring recital on Saturday evening.

The academy's choreographers, Sharri Bertanga, Tiffany Cormalis, Kayla Williams and Lonnie Liddell, organized and orchestrated 36 dance performances to a sold-out house at the Sisters High School auditorium.

It seems that dance is no longer limited to the floor, and heck with the laws of gravity. Sisters Dance Academy dancers leaped, cartwheeled and flipped their way through performances to the theme of "Dreams." "Believe in your dreams, they were given to you for a reason. After watching our show tonight I hope you know a little bit more about what your dreams are and go after them," said Lonnie Liddell, director of Sisters Dance Academy.
