person causing annoyance. Many of the residential developments in the Sisters area have rules and regulations that address the issue of noise and nuisance.

The Ridge at Indian Ford rules and regulations state "Any offensive activity or noise which is disturbing the peace and tranquility" is prohibited.

The noise of the skydiving plane frequently circling over Sisters four days a week has created a disturbing nuisance this summer for those living in and around Sisters as well as for those here on vacation in Sisters Country.

One wonders if the City of Sisters has a noise nuisance prohibition ordinance. If there is a noise nuisance ordinance in Sisters, why is it not being enforced? If there is no noise nuisance ordinance, there needs to be one to deal with the community-wide disturbing problem.

To the Editor:

The City has undertaken measures to preserve the unique qualities that make Sisters Country a desirable place to live and visit: land-use planning, building codes, restrictions for fast food chains and even limitations on light pollution in our night skies.

'JEAN BOMB': Art installation gave the Ski Inn a facelift grass in front of the building so that the fabric art was displayed in its full glory.

The motive of the suspects was apparently multi-fold. Not only did the jean bomb fit in with the Fiber Arts Stroll and the Quilt Show, it was also a tribute to Sisters' most recognizable Jean: Quilt Show founder Jean Wells.

The caper reportedly required an enormous cache of jeans and weeks of secretive trimming and cutting conducted in an undisclosed location. Sisters Habitat for Humanity has been identified as the primary jeans supplier.

The installation attracted much astonished attention from passers-by on Sunday, and has garnered significant additional notice on social media, including footage that clearly identifies the suspected jean-bombers, who seem to have widespread community support for their actions.
