body temperature was much cooler on the hike out. That cool feeling stayed with me for the rest of the hike. With a lunch break, exploration, and a swim, it is easy to turn this two-hour hike into a relaxing four-hour outing.

This trailhead for Square Lake can be reached simply by heading west from Sisters on Highway 20 to the summit of Santiam Pass. The PCT trailhead is clearly marked, and the paved parking area loop on the right (north) side of the highway is just east of the road that leads into Hoodoo and Big Lake (on the south side of the road). This is a fee-use area, so some form of parking pass is required. Wilderness permits are also required, but are free at the trailhead.

Re: "The Bunkhouse Chronicle: No decision," (The Nugget, July 13, page 10):

I think Jimmy Carter's observation on this topic says it best: "The challenge isn't to make politicians virtuous, but to inspire virtuous people to become politicians".

I know lots of virtuous folks, both liberal and conservative, and not a one of them would ever consider diving into the cesspool that is American politics.

Get the big money out of the game, and that might change.

RE: letter of Maggie Bull on 7/6:

Good for you, Maggie, for a fantastic letter. The Sisters area seems to have a BIG problem with narrow-minded people. The letters of Diane Pepperling and Michael Valoppi (July 13) get kudos from me, too.

We've lived in Sage Meadow for 27 years and hear the planes. But they certainly aren't an annoyance.

I, too, hope to never become so narrow-minded that I find the need to complain about others enjoying themselves.
