

Community Thanksgiving Feast on tap

Members of the Sisters community can come together for a free Thanksgiving Feast on Thursday, November 24.

Longtime Sisters residents Deri Frazee and Jennifer Seher have worked together along with several community volunteers to pull together the annual Sisters Community Thanksgiving Feast for the last three years.

Sisters Community Church donates their location and the kitchen for the group's use. Several local vendors have donated other items like food and linens.

"It's really a chance for people to come together," says co-founder Deri Frazee. "I love that it's a chance to socialize for those who may not have family close or may not want to cook."

Ray's Food Place has donated turkeys; McDonald's Wholesale, Mission Linen and several others have donated products for the group of dedicated volunteers to prepare. Community members and organizations have donated cash for other needs for the dinner as well.

Coordinators will work with their team of volunteers to feed close to 100 guests. The meal is served Thursday, November 24 at Sisters Community Church from noon to 4 p.m. and all are welcome. Meals include turkey, ham, stuffing, potatoes, salad, rolls, cranberries, green beans, assorted desserts, coffee and juice.

"People come in and enjoy a meal with friends and neighbors," says Frazee. "We will prepare to-go boxes, too."

Community members can volunteer through the Facebook group "Sisters Community Thanksgiving Dinner."

"No one should be alone on Thanksgiving," Frazee said. "It's about friendship and community."

Sher-Ray Organic Cosmetics

Sher-Ray Organic Cosmetics is going on four years of educating the gals on the benefits of using natural botanical skincare — because what you put on your skin goes directly into the bloodstream. Our products are vegan and gluten-free and infused with natural minerals. They have been created to keep skin cells living healthier and longer. This promotes younger skin; increasing hydration and promoting fibroblast that make amino acids for collagen.

Our products are bottled in Miron glass (biophotonic glass) so we can avoid using chemical preservatives. All of our products are concentrates and contain no water. They last longer and go farther. Pamper yourself with any of our luxury products and see the difference.

Sher-Ray also carries a line of hemp CBD & CBDA products, great for people who look for relief from pain and inflammation. This anti-inflammatory formula is low in THC, so there is NO BUZZ.
