COCC offers autobiography class

Central Oregon
Community College (COCC) is offering a continuing education 10-week workshop for adults on guided autobiography, titled Write It Down. The class will begin January 17, 2017. Each three-hour class will be on Tuesday, from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Sisters Library community room.

This workshop provides structure for participants who are interested in writing an autobiography or memoir. Each week, under the guidance of facilitator and Sisters resident Sue Stafford, members will explore a different life theme that has been influential in shaping their lives. Writing is done at home on each theme and then two pages are shared in a small group during the next class.
The first week explores major branching points in participants' lives. In subsequent sessions members explore such topics as family, the role of money, major life work or career, health and body, and other topics that interweave to form the tapestry of a life.

"Writing a guided autobiography focused on central themes in our lives can give new meaning to our present and future lives because it helps us understand the past more fully," said Stafford.

"This program is not therapy, but the insights gained can be very therapeutic. As stories are shared, strong bonds of support are formed among the participants. Previous groups that have taken the class enjoyed it so much they elected to continue together as writing groups for several years."

The guided autobiography program was developed by James Birren, PhD, former associate director of the UCLA Center on Aging, based on his 25 years of conducting autobiography groups.
Facilitator Stafford, MA ABS, has a background in counseling and expressive arts therapy, as well as being a freelance writer for The Nugget and The Bulletin.

The cost of the 10-week course is $179. To register for the class, please go online to the COCC continuing education catalog. For more information about the class, call instructor Sue Stafford at 541-549-2107.

HYPOTHERMIA:

Original cause of death was revised

attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning from a running motor. However, police reported, "After a detailed medical exam that was not able to be performed at the scene, the cause of death for Edward Fones was determined to be hypothermia and manner was accidental.
Other medical conditions also contributed to his death but carbon monoxide was not able to be ruled out until the detailed exam was completed. Carbon monoxide, drugs, and alcohol were not believed to be associated with this accidental death caused by exposure to temperatures that were reported to be below 0 degrees."

Fones was last seen on Thursday night and had been working at a Sisters business for several months. A citizen who works in the area called and requested the welfare check.
