

Sisters High School yearbooks on sale

The 2017 Sisters High School (SHS) yearbook is available for pre-order online.

Sisters High School has a committed yearbook staff including Cierra Haken, Mia Cook, Ellie Cook, Cassidy Ling-Scott, Annika Stadel, Will Werts, Ceili Cornelius, Amanda Smith and McKenna Marshall. This year's staff is the largest staff SHS has ever had, and everyone is committed to making the best 2017 yearbook possible. Each member has their own interests in what they want to do with the book including design, writing, photography, and business advertising.

"I look forward to working with this year's team to create our best yearbook yet," said staff member Cierra Haken. The team has been working closely with Genie Westfall with Herff Jones Publishing Company to create and print this year's book.

The book is $55. You can order the book at: www.yearbookordercenter.com and use the code number 6493 for Sisters High School.

Uber, Lyft representatives push for state regulations

SALEM (AP) — Representatives for ride-hailing companies Uber and Lyft are pushing a bill that would ensure the state regulates them instead of individual cities.

The Eugene Register-Guard reports representatives said at a Monday hearing that the bill would set statewide rules for the companies that would allow them to expand to cities such as Eugene and Springfield, where they are not currently operating.

Local governments have voiced opposition to House Bill 3246, which would reverse their authority over taxis and ride-hailing services.

Under the bill, drivers are considered independent contractors instead of employees, so don't have to pay payroll taxes, compensate at minimum wage, or provide benefits.

Artists earn art fellowship

In collaboration with The Roundhouse Foundation of Sisters, Crow's Shadow Institute of the Arts has announced Dawn Emerson and Carolyn Platt as the recipients of the Central Oregon Artists Fellowship.

This project is intended to foster cross-pollination and career development for artists working in Central Oregon.

Crow's Shadow Institute of the Arts is a nonprofit organization with a spacious gallery and printmaking studio. CSIA brings in emerging and established artists to produce monotypes, monoprints and editions — including lithographs, etchings, linocuts, woodcuts and more.

Carolyn and Dawn are both talented professional artists with years of experience in teaching and exhibiting their art. Both will receive a travel stipend and four days of access to the Crow's Shadow print studio, with instruction provided by CSIA's Master Printer.

Their time spent in the studio will be split between learning new techniques, and applying those processes to their existing artwork and methods. The ultimate goal of this project will be to expose professional artists to new approaches, allowing them to take new knowledge back to their home studios, and passing on that experience to other artists in their communities.

Build it and they will come...

Little League softball athletes and their families turned out Saturday — through freezing temps and even some snow — to prep fields and build a fence (thanks to a grant from The Roundhouse Foundation). Sisters Little League is still in search of umpires for softball games; if you'd like to volunteer, call SPRD at 541-549-2091.
