

Richard’s Produce to host fall festival

Autumn brooked no question about her arrival in Sisters Country — fall is here for certain — and with it comes Richard’s Produce’s first-ever fall festival.

The event is set for Saturday and Sunday, September 30 and October 1, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

“I want to do something exciting,” Richard Greene explained. “It’s kind of a thank-you to the community and I wanted to create some excitement.”

Greene and his partner, Caroline Lucas, are hosting the Seed to Table program, which connects Sisters students with agriculture.

“They’re going to have a big presentation,” Greene said. “They’re going to have a nice organic spread.”

Proceeds from the event will benefit the ongoing program.

The event also features free mini-pumpkins for kids ages 8 and under from the Richard’s Produce pumpkin patch. They’re cooking corn-on-the-cob and will have kettle and caramel corn, too. They will feature a variety of quality Pacific Northwest produce.
