Kid Made Camp opened its booth at Sisters Farmers Market on a sunny day at Fir Street Park. Local kids spent the week making crafts and food, learning about entrepreneurship and marketing, and gaining experience with customer service and sales. On Friday afternoon, they sold nearly $200 worth of their wares to enthusiastic market-goers. Sisters-based Kid Made Camp also offers a week-long course in Bend.

Nursing program on tap at OSU Cascades

CORVALLIS – The Oregon State University Board of Trustees Monday unanimously approved a new program at OSU-Cascades for registered nurses wanting to earn a Bachelor of Science in nursing.

The board unanimously also amended the construction budget and plan for the Marine Studies Building in Newport and approved a remodeling project at Finley Hall, a residential dormitory on Oregon State's Corvallis campus.

The Bachelor of Science in nursing program is scheduled to launch in the 2019-20 academic year as a part-time, fully online program aimed at licensed registered nurses seeking to advance their careers while continuing to work. With five to seven credits per term, the program could be completed by nurses in two years.

The program, which still needs the support of the statewide public universities' provosts' council and the state Higher Education Coordinating Commission, would be open to all registered nurses but is designed to increase diversity in nursing leadership positions, particularly among nurses who are bilingual.

"This program will produce high-quality leaders in the nursing profession while also making the profession more diverse and emphasizing public health and service to rural communities," OSU President Ed Ray said. "It will cost half the price of many other bachelors of science of nursing programs in Oregon, and when future demand warrants it, we will offer the program as a one-calendar-year program."

The board noted the program will address a shortage of bachelors of science of nursing-trained nurses in the state and in particular Central Oregon, where fewer than 40 percent of nurses have a bachelor's degree.

“...improving health and wellness is a signature area of distinction for OSU.”
— OSU President Ed Ray

The program, a partnership between OSU-Cascades, Central Oregon Community College and St. Charles Healthcare System, will focus on recruiting students from COCC and the greater Bend area. While the program is open to all licensed nurses in Oregon, it will focus on recruiting students from COCC and nurses in Central Oregon.

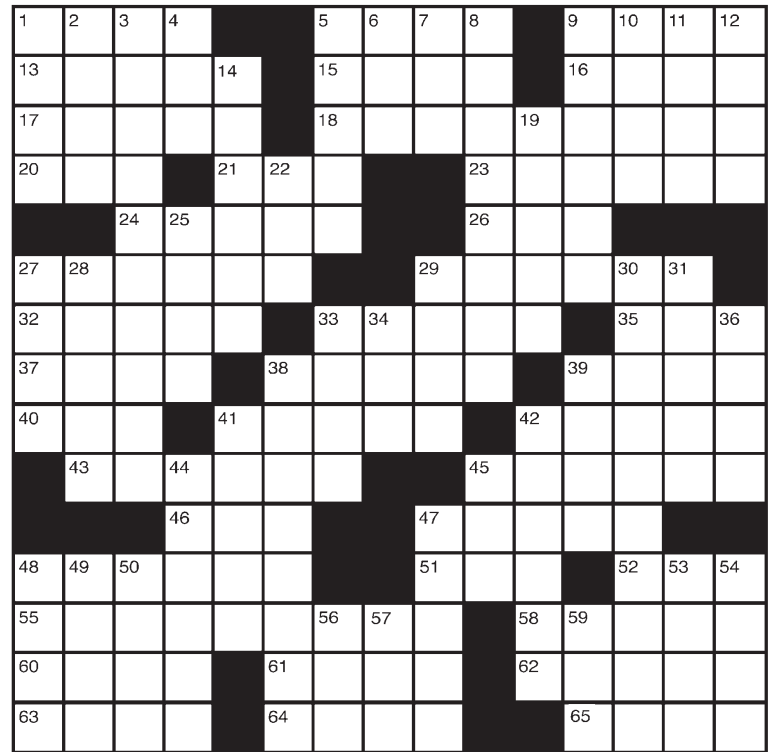

"The program supports our land grant mission of affordability, access and places a special emphasis on rural health issues," said OSU President Ed Ray. "In addition, improving health and wellness is a signature area of distinction for OSU."
