The Sisters Arts Association's monthly art stroll continues this Friday, 4 to 7 p.m. throughout local galleries with new artists, live music, and light refreshments.

At The Collection Gallery, owner, sculptor, and painter Gary Cooley will show his new work including newly arrived from the foundry bronzes.

Sisters Gallery & Frame Shop has new work by one of Sisters' favorite artists, Paul Alan Bennett. The "Constellation" series delves deeply into Bennett's love of Greek mythology. A special treat is in store for those who drop by to chat with Bennett and gallery artists Mike Stasko and Jennifer Hartwig.

Raven Makes Gallery has new art and jewelry from the Hopi Mesas of Arizona, and bronze and ceramic pieces celebrating transformation, including pieces by Teresa White, Yu'pik sculptor; and Wilfred Kaye, Hopi.

Stitchin' Post Fiber Arts Gallery is hosting "Threads That Bind," an exhibit by Central Oregon Studio Art Quilt Associates members. The art quilters' 2018 challenge explores the threads that hold our art, our lives, and our communities together. All of the quilts are the same size, 18 by 40 or 40 by 18 inches.

Hood Avenue Art features mysterious metal sculpture by Breezy Anderson and luminous oil paintings by Katherine Taylor. Anderson's lifesized figures and kinetic toy-like structures charm the viewers. Taylor depicts the light of the high desert in a style reminiscent of the old masters.

The Imagination Gallery hosts Marjie and Ken Scott, artist in acrylics and sculptor in bronze and steel, whose new work depicts human form in ethnic and cultural subject matter. Live music will be courtesy of Cuppa Joe band.

Jill Neal Gallery has bewitching new Halloween mugs, equine art in canvas and numbered prints, and watercolor and acrylic originals.

Randy Redfield's colorful abstracts on pottery are displayed at Studio Redfield along with custom-designed Kibak Tiles.

Cowgirls and Indians Resale will feature author Jill Stanford signing her books, and Kate Aspen's Red Necklace Series. The shop specializes in aftermarket artwork including bronze, original oils, and watercolors by listed artists. During the stroll, artwork will be 25 percent off.

Sisters Coffee Company will be open until 6 p.m. with oil paintings by one of its own baristas, Caprial Long, on the walls of the café all month.

This month the Central Oregon Spinners and Weavers' annual exhibit is hanging in the community room of Sisters Library, where color and texture take center stage. And in the library's computer room stop to see paper collage by Katie Lofquist.

Visit Nature's Bling to see fine rare mineral specimens and fossils, and check out NASA's poster-sized images of the first moon rocks.

The Clearwater Gallery features all of its gallery artists this month.

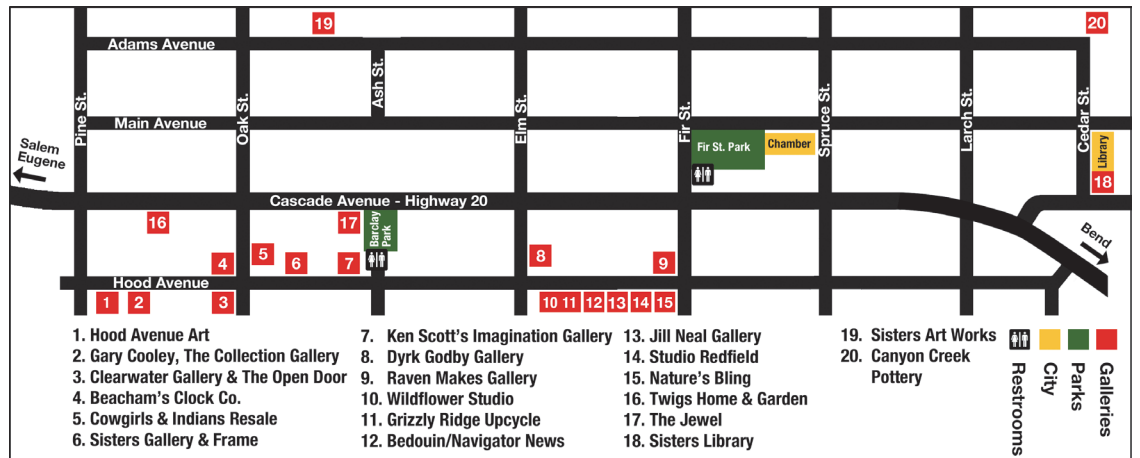

Salmon Hand sculpture featured at Raven Makes Gallery.

Fall Colors by John Runnels featured at Wildflower Studio.

Wildflower Studio welcomes artist John Runnels, a local oil painter who works with a palette knife and brilliant color.

Also open are Grizzly Ridge Upcycle and Dyrk Godby Gallery. Art strolls continue every fourth Friday of the month, year round. For more information find Sisters Arts Association on Facebook or at www.sistersarts.org.
