

Travelin' McCourys roll into Bend

The Travelin' McCourys will set fire to the stage with their arsenal of burning bluegrass on Monday, November 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the Tower Theatre in Bend.

The performance is presented by the nonprofit Tower Theatre Foundation and promises to be overflowing with inventive bluegrass and stellar musicianship. The McCoury brothers were born into the tradition, and spent many years on the road with their legendary dad, Del.

However, The Travelin' McCourys have never been a band to limit themselves to one genre. They're always looking for inspiration beyond the banjo, and that's why Rolling Stone described them as, "A sublime combination of rock and bluegrass, contemporary and classic, old and young." This innovative thinking has allowed them collaborations with a host of impressive names, including, The Allman Brothers, Phish,

The Travelin' McCourys will set the stage on fire at the Tower Theatre on Monday.

Dierks Bentley, and Keller Williams, to name a few.

Opening the evening is The Jacob Jolliff Band. Jacob is a Northwest native widely recognized as the mandolin player for Yonder Mountain String Band. His group features long-time partner-in-crime and Grand Master Fiddle Champion Alex Hargreaves, his all-time favorite picking buddy Stash Wyslouch on guitar, and Portland jazz champion Jeff Picker on bass.

Tickets are on sale now at www.towertheatre.org. The Tower Theatre is located at 835 NW Wall St. in Bend.

Council shelves marijuana ordinance

By Sue Stafford
Correspondent

On the advice of legal counsel, the Sisters City Council declined to consider adoption of Ordinance #490 amending the City's Development Code to authorize and adopt standards for marijuana-related businesses and other changes.

Sisters voters defeated the ballot measure that would have approved the establishment of marijuana-based businesses in the city. Therefore, the Council concurred with the attorneys, saying adopting the ordinance when voters defeated the ballot measure could appear contradictory to the results of the vote and possibly open the City up to legal challenges from persons wanting to open marijuana businesses

If circumstances change in the future, with the Federal government making marijuana legal, or the citizens of Sisters requesting another vote on allowing marijuana-related businesses in town, the ordinance could be resurrected and the text amendments instituted.

The original ordinance was drafted ahead of the ballot measure to be in place if the measure passed.
