Hazelnut Hill

Whose Valentine wouldn't love hazelnuts and chocolate? Shop online for gift boxes loaded with roasted hazelnuts for eating or baking, hazelnut toffee or brittle, chocolate-covered hazelnuts, turtle candy and artisan chocolates. The two-pound Oregon Scenic Chocolate Bar is truly a one-of-a-kind gift. Thinking about making breakfast in bed to impress your sweetie? Hazelnut pancake and waffle mix with hazelnut butter will earn you extra kisses!

Hazelnut Hill has been growing and making hazelnut products on their Oregon farm for over 26 years, but new owners Ryan, a fourth-generation farmer, and Rachel, a passionate chocolatier, are using the same recipes, plus some of their own, to take hazelnuts to a new level. Hazelnuts are a great source of magnesium and iron, and a good source of protein and healthy fats.

There's nothing more "Oregon" than hazelnuts; the state is the largest producer in the U.S. Visit HazelnutHill at www.hazelnuthill.com or call 541-520-4464.

Antler Arts

What do you do when your favorite store in Sisters seems to be going away? If you're Jaimi and James Warren — you buy it!

New local owners, the Warrens and their partner and Jaimi's best friend, Tina Zamora, will be reopening the iconic Western and Native American lifestyle store this month. The store you loved will be that same store with its wonderful rustic charm — and now open seven days a week.

From table lamps to magnificent antler chandeliers, from whimsical wildlife to breathtaking Western scenes, Antler Arts has something you will just have to take with you to outfit your cozy home or your Western lodge.

Keep your eyes open as the days count down to a new opening. You can follow Antler Arts on Facebook at www.facebook.com/antlerartsinc and as soon as those doors open, stop on in to visit one of Sisters' truly unique local favorites.
