

WILD HORSES: Display is up at Sisters Library through month

welcomed Lullaby, a part of the last year’s Oregon Rescue Challenge.

“We followed her with her trainer, and knew she’d be a good horse with my grand-kids,” Carol said.

In addition to her full-time job as office manager at Green Ridge Physical Therapy and Wellness, Carol’s wild horse photographs have opened new doors into personal and business ventures. In Carol’s own words ... “These images are a pure reflection of my heart for our wild horses. They have given me some of the most incredible moments in my life and they rebirthed my own personal horse life when I thought it was gone forever.

“My life changed dramatically when I entered their world, and it changed even more dramatically when I shared that first image of Marley. God placed a camera in my hands for a purpose... and I hope I am successful in that purpose. If you come down to Sisters Library and spend some time looking at these beautiful creatures, I hope that you will feel something stir in your heart. I hope that you will come to care for and value our wild horses. If you feel that internal stirring, then I will know that I am living up to that divine commission I was entrusted with.”

With the exception of Marley, most of Carol’s horse images in the library show are for sale. A portion of the proceeds goes to the Friends of Sisters Library, whose art committee coordinates the monthly library exhibits. You can follow Carol on Facebook, or at her blog, adivinelyrepuposedlife.com. All of the money goes toward care of her broken mustang, Grace. Her photographs are also shown at Hop & Brew in Sisters.

‘Ready, Set, Go’ part of wildfire preparedness

Parts of Oregon are already heading into wildfire season. Last year saw very dangerous situations develop quickly in the area east of Sisters, where homes were threatened or destroyed and people had to evacuate at a moment’s notice.

Oregon’s Office of Emergency Management offers a reminder about evacuation levels. The statewide “Ready, Set, Go” system is used to notify communities that they are facing a threat and are used for floods, fires and other hazards.

“An important part of wildfire preparedness is familiarity with statewide evacuation levels,” said OEM Director Andrew Phelps. “Wildfires can come without warning and move quickly, so residents need to prepare now in case they have to leave their home.”

• Level 1 Evacuation means “BE READY” for potential evacuation. Residents should be aware of the danger that exists in their area, monitor emergency services websites and local media outlets for information. This is the time for preparation and precautionary movement of persons with special needs, mobile property and (under certain circumstances) pets and livestock. If conditions worsen, emergency services personnel may contact you via an emergency notification system.

• Level 2 Evacuation means “BE SET” to evacuate. You should be ready to leave at a moment’s notice as this level indicates there is significant danger to your area, and residents should either voluntarily relocate to a shelter or with family/friends outside of the affected area. Residents may have time to gather necessary items, but doing so is at their own risk.

• Level 3 Evacuation means “GO” Evacuate NOW, leave immediately! Danger to your area is current or imminent, and you should evacuate immediately. If you choose to ignore this advisement, you must understand that emergency services may not be available to assist you further. DO NOT delay leaving to gather any belongings or make efforts to protect your home.

OEM partners with the Department of Forestry, the Office of the State Fire Marshal, Keep Oregon Green and other state agencies each year to promote wildfire awareness and preparedness, and urges all Oregon communities to always follow directions of emergency officials during evacuations.

“We want to make sure every Oregonian is safe this fire season and that you are prepared for any hazard we face,” said Phelps.
