Festival offers songwriting retreat

Sisters Folk Festival will host Sisters Songworks: An Intimate Writing Retreat, this spring. Registration for the limited slots is underway.

The retreat is a new education initiative for the organization in 2020.

Using the successful platform of the Americana Song Academy, SFF is looking to offer a more intimate experience with three songwriter instructors and 24 participants in an immersive songwriting and poetry experience focused on lyric writing and developing songs more deeply. Sisters Songworks will take place April 17-19.

Teaching artists include Nashville-based Tom Kimmel, nationally touring Portland-based artist Anna Tivel, and 2019 Oregon Book Awards Winner, Beth Wood. Wood — currently staff director for the Americana Song Academy at Caldera — will serve as director of the camp.

All instructors are poets as well as songwriters. The focus will be on the craft of songwriting as a literary art

Fire district names executive assistant

The Sisters-Camp Sherman Fire District has promoted Julie Spor to the position of executive assistant. The executive assistant is responsible for office management and advanced-level administrative functions for the Fire District. In addition to the advanced administrative functions, the executive assistant performs some financial management duties for the District.

Fire Chief Roger Johnson said, “We are very fortunate to have Julie as part of our administrative team and have no doubt that she will excel in her new position.”

Residents calling the District office or stopping by the headquarters station on Elm Street are likely to be greeted by Spor as the first point of contact. She helps coordinate many of the programs and community service projects the District provides and recently has taken on the role of public information officer for the District. Spor also serves as the president of the Oregon Fire Service Office Administrators (OFSSOA). OFSSOA is an educational Megan Ellsworth has been singing and playing guitar since she was a little girl running around the woods of Camp Sherman. Ellsworth, a Sisters High School graduate, class of 2016, is entering her last semester of college at the University of Colorado in Denver.

Ellsworth is double-majoring in songwriting and music business. Her majors are working together to further her career in the music business as a self-made singer-songwriter and performer.

Ellsworth knew she wanted to be a performer from a young age.

“I was never really good at anything else, and I’ve always been passionate about music and the arts and I like to work in many areas of the music world and be in that creative space,” she said.

Ellsworth attended Black Butte School for elementary and middle school before transferring to Sisters High School for her freshman year. From the beginning, she was in the Americana Project class, which she said helped prepare her well for her musical future. The IEE program at SHS was another huge influence on Ellsworth, pairing arts with the outdoors where she extended her creative space.

“Colorado is a really outdoorsy place, similar to Oregon, so all my time in IEE taught me wilderness skills and I hike all the time there now,” she said.

The Americana Project class is where Ellsworth could really hone her skills and become a leader in the class. Ellsworth found that it was a really good place to
