Antler Arts

Each year, deer, elk and antelope shed their antlers, littering the floor of field and forest with one of nature's most striking renewable resources.

"Shed-hunters," like mushroom-pickers, love to be out in the woods, driven to find that perfect specimen from a buck or a bull that can then be turned into exquisite art. And you'll find an outstanding array of such crafts at Antler Arts in Sisters.

The people who collect those beautiful shed antlers know that they can trust Jaimi and James Warren to give them a fair price for their treasures, based on a true scale weight. That's why people from across the Pacific Northwest send their product to Antler Arts in Sisters.

And crafters in Sisters Country and across the region turn them into everything from knife-handles to magnificent elk-antler chandeliers. Antler Arts products grace homes from rustic cabins to grand lodge-style homes, all across Sisters Country.

Your Care

These times have shown us that nothing is more important than maintaining our health. Your Care stands ready to help the Sisters community do just that, with urgent care available every day.

Your Care also has the vision to be proactive. They are currently looking toward fall, when they will provide community flu shot clinics and on-site business stops for flu shots — all with an eye to protecting Sisters folks from the possibility of contracting flu and COVID-19 at the same time. "We're going to go out and protect as many people as possible from the flu," said Your Care's Operations Director Deb Wattenburg.

Your Care is committed to helping local businesses keep their employees healthy. Your Care is welcoming occupational health specialist Sallye Stauber, DNP, to the team as Your Care continues to offer exceptional occupational medicine services for employers and workers across Central Oregon.
