Lane County Farmers' Market Opens June 4th

Eugene was once the site of one of the most successful and popular Farmers' Markets on the West Coast. The Eugene Producer's Public Market opened in 1915, and operated successfully for 14 years at a location on 8th and Park Streets downtown. Fruits, vegetables, poultry, eggs, meat, and cider were sold to eager customers under a covered open-walled structure. In 1929, after intense competition by factions of downtown merchants wanting the Farmers' Market to locate near their stores, the Farmers' Market moved to a fancy new building at the corner of Broadway and Charnelton Streets. The opening of the new market was described as a "mob scene," and 100 producers sold their goods. The Pomona Grange was the owner of the building, and was responsible for the development and successful management of the Public Market. However, by the 1950's, the pressures of high land value, supermarkets, and one-crop farming caused the Market to close in 1959, as the building was converted for use by a national chain drug store.

In July 1979, the Saturday Market Board of Directors indicated its interest in managing the Farmers' Market. The Saturday Market was a stable organization, nearly 10 years old, with competent paid staff and experience in managing vendor markets.

The Saturday Market staff operated the Farmers' Market as a distinct, yet complementary activity to the Saturday Craft Market held on the adjacent parking lot. They took care of advertising, insurance, fee collection, maintenance, and general operation of the market. In addition, they managed a consignment booth which sold produce from farmers and backyard growers at a 10 percent mark-up.

In its fifth year of sponsoring the Lane County Farmers' Market, the Saturday Market has been busily working with City and County officials to get the Farmers' Market stabilized for its June 4th opening. Because of its historical significance to the area, there is a lot of support for its continued survival. The produce and products offered at the Farmers' Market deserve their reputation as the freshest and finest to be found in the area... a source of pride to the vendors and good fortune for their customers. Visit the Farmers' Market Saturdays at its new location adjacent to Saturday Market, downtown Eugene. Call 686-8885 for more information regarding how to sell your produce, fees, etc.

Announcements

A hands-on computer instruction and summer recreation will be combined in a computer camp for children, August 7-20, for children ages 9 to 15. For further information and registration details, contact the UO Continuation Center, 333 Oregon Hall, Eugene 97403, 686-4231.

The Third Annual Oregon State Fair Film Competition, coordinated by the Media Project, will be held this summer, August 26-September 5. This year, the competition recognizes superior work by filmmakers living in Oregon and Washington. Entries must have been completed after January, 1980 and must be submitted by 5 pm July 11. For entry forms and more information write to: The Media Project, 925 NW 19th, Portland, OR 97209.

The Media Project will be screening films this summer for both the Oregon State Fair Film Competition and the second annual Cablesystems Pacific film and video cablecast package, Image Crossing Northwest. One print may be submitted for both screenings—although there are separate guidelines for Image Crossing Northwest.

Applications are now available for any youngsters, grades four through seven, who would like to attend the 4-day 4-H summer camps at Camp Lane, along with Siuslaw River near Mapleton. There will be 2 sessions: June 20-24 for 4th and 5th grades; and June 27-July 1 for 6th and 7th grades. The all-inclusive camp fee is $45 and optional transportation will be available for $5. All fees, plus the application form, are due at the Extension office no later than June 9. Applications may be obtained from the Lane County Extension Office, 950 W 13th Ave, Eugene; or by calling 687-4243.

Registration is open for the Family Vacation College, to be held in two week-long sessions, July 17-23 and July 24-30. The first conference is entitled The Computer: Extension of the Human Mind II and the second conference will center on Education for the Gifted: Patterns for the Future. For more information write to Family Vacation College, 180 Esslinger Hall, U of O, 97403, or call 686-3396.
