FASHION

"The Berry Patch" at Saturday Market features clothes for kids, like this adjustable wrap-around jacket with velcro back closure. Clothes are hand-made by Rene Berry.

No question about it! Kids are into fashion. Over-sized sweaters, sweater vests and shirts, scarves and neckties for girls, and slick shiny pants and jackets for boys are among the latest in children's wear. Pictured here are some exciting ensembles from Fletchers for Children, on the Eugene Downtown Mall.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Books, Babies & Buggies

Sherman and Gale Smith have opened Books, Babies and Buggies in the Centre Court Building on the Eugene Mall. The store offers many unusual products for baby and child care, such as natural fiber diaper covers, lambskin comforters, and buggies to carry beds. They also carry toys which they have selected for safety, durability and creativity. The Smiths say their store emphasizes education for parents, and this is reflected in their selection of books and literature on parenting in addition to their library of children's books and records. Not surprisingly, the store is an outgrowth of the Smith's personal parenting experience and their perception of a community need for alternative resources in baby and child care.

Second Thoughts

—new resale
clothing shop

Second Thoughts, a quality resale shop for women, is now open at 720½ East 13th, just behind Logos Book Store. The owners are Katy and Lisa Gullette. Second Thoughts is a consignment store featuring current and designer fashions in natural fibers. The store has a small but growing selection of vintage clothing, and due to demand, is opening a men's section after Christmas. The owners are now accepting men's as well as women's clothing on consignment. Second Thoughts also has a large selection of new clothing and jewelry. Hours are 11 am-6 pm, Monday-Saturday. The phone number is 343-1312.
