

Oregon Jazz Festival

Billed as a fund-raiser to benefit University of Oregon scholarship funds, the first Oregon Jazz Festival will feature national recording artists Dan Siegel (keyboardist) and his new band, "76," and Bobby Hutcherson (viabraphone) on Sunday, Aug. 24 at the Cuthbert Amphitheater in Alton Baker Park. Additional jazz artists featured at the Eugene event include Deborah Lee and Dick Blake, Our Thing Quartet with Andre St. James, and the Eugene Jazz Orchestra with Greg Hall.

Siegel, a Eugene native, has long been acknowledged as a pioneer in this country's progressive jazz movement. His rapid rise to fame since 1980 included releasing seven critically acclaimed jazz albums and an eighth, titled Short Stories, just out.

Hutcherson will be coming to the Oregon Jazz Festival the day after giving a concert in Washington, DC. He's recorded over 20 records with such musical greats as Andrew Hill, Eric Colthly and Barnford Marsalis.

The Our Thing Quartet features Ronnie Stien on drums, Bill Beach on piano and Andre St. James on bass. St. James has played in the San Francisco area with the Ed Kelly Trio and Smiley Winners.

The Oregon Jazz Festival is sponsored by the Lane County Chapter of the University of Oregon Alumni Association, Smith & Reilly beer as well as Premier Distributors.

Advance tickets may be purchased for $7 at the Hult Center ticket office or by phoning (503) 687-5000 for a list of additional outlets throughout Oregon. Tickets are $8 the day of the event. Children under 12 will be admitted free. Beverages and deli-type foods will be available at the Festival site.

Special guest Dan Siegel will return to Eugene to play at the Oregon Jazz Festival Sunday afternoon.

Andre St. James with "Our Thing Quartet" will perform Sunday afternoon at the Oregon Jazz Festival in Cuthbert Amphitheater in Alton Baker Park.
