
THE CHEMAWA AMERICAN

Published Monthly at the United States Indian Training School
Chemawa, Oregon

H. E. WADSWORTH, Superintendent

Entered at the Chemawa, Oregon, Postoffice as Second-Class Mail Matter

Subscription Rate: : : : : 25 Cents Per School Year
Advertising Rates on Application

ADVANTAGES AT CHEMAWA

Once again school is in session at Chemawa. An education is of prime importance at this day and age of the world—right education we mean. An educational institution which trains both the mind and hand of inestimable value in any country. This is an age of achievement and the greatness of the United States as a nation is attributable to the artisans of skill throughout our land more than to any other asset to which we may point.

Teaching which does not instill in the minds of the youths of the land the honor of honest labor is pernicious to the uttermost degree. We have no patience with that class which elects itself too good to soil its hands with honest labor. We have no use for those who are advocates of such a course of thought or action. The strength of which Chemawa may boast lies in her ability to instruct along practical lines; lines that employ both the mind and the hand; lines that give scope to industrial and creative ability; lines that lead to honest efforts and self-respect; lines that lead to contentment in old age.

We have a splendid academic course to offer students who may elect to come to Chemawa. In this department will be found a corps of teachers not only able, but anxious to help all who will come here and make an honest effort. The school was never better able to guarantee a strong academic course than it is at present.

Along industrial lines the boys will find competent men at Chemawa teaching tailoring, carpentry, blacksmithing, painting, steam and electrical engineering, farming and gardening on up-to-date lines, dairying; the bakery, harness shop and printing businesses are also to be found here. In brief enumeration of what is offered it ought not to be hard for a boy to find something which will appeal to him and call him