

OUR BUDGET OF LOCAL LORE

WISE AND OTHERWISE

On New Years Day Miss Skipton invited a number of friends to dine with her. The affair was a most pleasing success in every way.

No one can deny the fact that the students at Chemawa had a fine time of it during the holiday season. There were all sorts of entertainment in the way of dancing and games.

Miss Amy Hall is here temporarily at present in the capacity of teacher in the academic department. Many friends were pleased to extend a welcome to her when she again came to Chemawa.

We desire to inform our readers that Mr. R. G. Henderson, our grocer and postmaster, is also our notary public. Anybody in this vicinity having affidavits to make have only to appear before Mr. Henderson.

Silas Moon was a visitor at Chemawa during the Christmas festivities. He is now holding a position near Astoria, as foreman of a gang of men employed at the manufacture of cement blocks, and is getting along nicely.

Galucia Nelson, a member of our graduating class of 1911, is now at his home in Cordova, Alaska, and has written a friend that all is well with him. He is thinking of coming down next fall and taking a business course somewhere.

Miss Edythe I. Hall, who for a long time was one of our teachers, took her leave of Chemawa and the service a couple of weeks ago. She has taken up wireless telegraphy in Portland, having been given a good proposition. Many Chemawa friends are sincerely hoping that she will have only the best of luck and lots of it in her new field.

Miss Anna Buck, one of our graduates, is now at Riverside in Southern California, and is well pleased with that section and its many beauties. She has charge of the housekeeping for a family in that city and is getting along nicely. If she comes north next summer, as she plans, she is certain to visit at Chemawa.

The harness shop, in charge of Mr. Swoboda, is in receipt of a fine up-to-date harness stitcher—a Landis No. 3. This is a capital addition to this department when the matter of efficiency is considered. We are also pleased to report that this shop is promised some additional features which shall tend to make this department of prime importance.

James Minesinger, who is now taking a business course at Haskell Institute, Kansas, writes that he is getting along nicely. This is good news for us. James Smith, formerly of Chemawa, is attending Haskell and will graduate this year from the business department. Victoria Laderoute and Burney Wilson are two other former Chemawa pupils who are at Haskell.
