

Supt. Wadsworth has just received information to the effect that Congressman Hawely has secured an addition of $6,000 to our fund, for improvements about the plant. This makes a total of $12,000 in this fund, but the additional money is to be allowed for improvements to our water system—new steel tank, etc. This is certtinely good news.

On the evenings of December 27 and 28 we enjoyed our first series of moving pictures. The pictures were fine in every way and as a special Christmas feature "Herod, the New Born King," was given. Another picture was the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," by Julia Ward Howe, given in allegorical style. A dramatic series, "The Old Actor," was most interesting. As a close to the series a comic reel was run, entitled "Alkali Ike and His Bride." The whole series was immense. We are to have another series within a few days and mention will be given of same in our next issue. In fact, it is intended to have a picture treat every two weeks from now on.

SAID OF US

The December issue of the Chemawa American, the official publication of the Indian training school at Chemawa, is just off the press. The little magazine is printed by Indian apprentices and presents a neat and tasteful appearance. It is bound in a two-toned blue cover and contains much interesting reading matter, including "Self-Confidence, an Asset for Success," "Protect the Birds," "Indian Legends," Unveiling of the Monument of "Chief Seattle."

The Chemawa (Ore.) American has become a monthly, and the issues so far to hand suggest that Superintendent Wadsworth intends to make things lively for The Chilocco School Journal in the matter of paper, display and illustrations, to say nothing of bright, fresh Indian matter and color work.—The Indian Friend, New York, N. Y.

There are short articles from the different departments of the school, timely editorials and personal mentions, illustrated with reproductions from photographs and sketches.

The publication reflects much credit upon H. E. Wadsworth, superintendent of the school, who is the editor, and upon the other teachers and pupils who contributed to it.—The Oregon Daily Journal, Portland, Oregon.

This year The Chemawa American, a paper printed as well as published by students of the Salem Indian Training School, has been changed from a weekly to a monthly paper, and we are sure if our students once read the unique paper, they would be more than pleased. The magazine with its stories, its splendid photographs and drawings, its accounts of bands, glee clubs, domestic science classes and work shops, tells of the big farm where practical education is taught to Indian boys and girls.—The Eh Kah Nam, Walla Walla, Wash.
