Among the leaders of this movement, which is held under the auspices of the Society of American Indians, are many well known men and women in public and private life. These include senators, representatives, teachers, farmers, lawyers, doctors, artists, scientists and politicians of all parties, and a host of thinking men and women, all Indians.

Among the vice-presidents of the society is Representative Carter of Oklahoma, the former chief of Choctaw council. Dr. Sherman Coolidge, a well known Episcopal clergyman and a graduate of one or two eastern colleges, is the president. He also is a full blood Arapahoe, and was born in a buffalo hide tepee in the Rocky mountain foothills. His life is a romance from his earliest days. Dr. Charles A. Eastman, the well known Sioux writer and lecturer, and Dr. Carlos Montezuma, the Apache physician of Chicago, are two members of the medical profession who are among the leaders

Among the scientific men of Indian blood are Prof. J. N. B. Hewitt of the Smithsonian institution, and Arthur C. Parker of Albany, N. Y., the state archaeologist of N. Y. Mr. Parker is the secretary of the society.

Largely through the efforts of Prof. McKenzie a large associate membership of the keen thinkers along civic and economic lines has been enlisted in the society, until every friend of the red man now wants to be an associate member.

This year the society will be welcomed to Columbus by Governor Harmon, the mayor of the city, and the officials of churches, of fraternal bodies, and prominent citizens. The reception will be held in the chamber of commerce hall.

Once Columbus was the seat of the federal prison, where Sioux warriors who wanted to fight for their country were incarcerated.
