

stitution should show their interest and appreciation by paying very close attention.—William Ready, Junior.

The small library in the academic building was named "Wadsworth" recently in honor of our superintendent, who started it. More than 130 new books were brought from the commissary, so there are now on file 336 books on hand as well as two daily papers, the Saturday evening Post, Farm Journal, Popular Magazine, Everybody's, Munsey's, Review of Reviews, Ladies Home Journal and the Youth's Companion, also the Scientific American. Interest in the library is growing rapidly. Many of the magazines which have been ordered are here and others will arrive soon. The librarian of the Salem Public Library has kindly offered to assist in cataloguing our books in a simplified form.—Paul Kininnook, Librarian,

---

ACADEMIC LOCAL

Miss Banfield, teacher of the fourth grade, spent Easter at her home in Portland.

Miss Chappel of the Willamette University was a guest of Miss Royer last week at dinner.

Miss Dohse, who had the misfortune to sprain her ankle a few weeks ago, is again in her school room. The children are glad to have her back.

The "Home Building" papers have been finished to the delight of teachers and pupils. Much benefit has been derived by the school as a whole from writing upon this subject.

Father Gall is faithful in performing his duty at this school. He is here every Saturday and Sunday to hold services for the Catholic students. He has a pleasant word and smile for everyone.

During the period that Miss Dohse was off duty with a sprained ankle Miss Gertrude Brewer took her place as pianist at all of the chapel exercises. Miss Drewer is everywhere recognized as an able pianist.

Mrs. Fickle, who has been confined to her room for more than a week with illness, is about well again. She resumed work in the sewing room on Monday. Her friends are pleased to know she has recovered.

The band under the supervision of Mr. Loos is making rapid progress. We are awakened every morning by the sweet strains of music. The students march to breakfast and supper to the music of the band and salute the flag before going to meals, which is a pretty, patriotic custom.