

OUR SCHOOL LIBRARY

For years a problem has been confronting us here at Chemawa. Where can our students spend their spare time profitably? Where can they find material for debates and hints and suggestions on the latest methods of industry? Never until now has there been a solution to this problem, and we are pleased to publish it for the benefit of all: "Go to the Wadsworth Library in the academic building." There are many who do not know that we have a library at Chemawa and we take this way of telling them.

Come and see what we have. Over 500 volumes of good, clean reading, including two sets of the best encyclopedias. We have one or more recent books on every industry taught in the school and much good literature on many things not taught here. Many of these books are of special value to employes, who also are welcome to make use of the library. It is a pleasant place in which to spend a few hours with the daily papers and popular magazines.

The library has a good foundation and has been established on a simple plan, the one used in the public schools of Oregon. The rules are few and simple, but we shall expect every borrower to conform to them.

To Supt. Wadsworth thanks are due for promptness in securing and furnishing library supplies, and to Paul Kinninook, the librarian, and to Reginald Downie, the assistant librarian, for helping to prepare the books for loaning. One hundred new volumes are now enroute for us, which will be placed at your disposal as rapidly as possible upon their arrival.—Matilda Siegmund Jones, Teacher.

SEWING ROOM NOTES

We are now starting on the C and D companies' uniforms. They are going to look very well. We expect to have them finished in a short time.

We have started to make the shirtwaists. They are plain, but very pretty.

We have been working on the gingham dresses and have about completed them.

The sewing-room girls are doing nicely with the uniforms as they have only two more companies to make for.

The sewing room has received four new machines and the girls are very proud of them, as they can do their work better.

The girls are very busy in the sewing-room making uniform skirts, waists and gingham dresses.
