

Our kitchen gives forth such a stream of good cheer—
Fine bread, pies and puddings and salads appear;
You'll scarce find a place, though you search far and near,
Where girls learn to cook as right here.

In house work and sewing and laundry work too
Our girls can the average white girl outdo, Themselves and their clothes neat and pleasing to view,
They're capable workers all through.

Tulalip has ever a glorious way
To celebrate many a prized holiday,
With feasting and presents and parties so gay,
Lawn socials and queens of the May.

In counting our treasures we never forget
Old friends kind and generous who stand by us yet;
But one way we know to pay off friendship's debt—
To give them no cause for regret.

Oh, I know a nice place for young folks to go—
Tulalip, you know! Tulalip, you know!
A fine place for Indian young folks to go—
Tulalip—Tulalip, you know!
