

"Be conscious of yourself," said the speaker, "and do nothing to attract attention. A plain girl simply and neatly dressed, has every advantage over her sister who is dressed in a flashy manner, and the plain girl commands the respect of men and women alike. Be just a girl and you will be a woman soon enough."

THE INTERESTING PART

Outside it was snowing hard and the teacher considered it her duty to warn her charges. "Boys and girls should be very careful to avoid colds at this time," she said solemnly. "I had a darling little brother, only seven years old. One day he went out in the snow with his new sled and caught cold. Pneumonia set in and in three days he was dead."

A hush fell upon the school; then a youngster in the back row stood up and asked: "Where's his sled?"

IDENTIFIED AT LAST

It was at Jesus College, Oxford, that one of the most laughable stories connected with that university originated. Jesus College is chiefly patronized by Welshmen.

A Cardiff resident, visiting "the city of spires" for the first time bethought himself that at Jesus College was a young man he knew in the Welsh capital, so he resolved to call on him. Accordingly he tackled the porter of the college.

"Is Mr. Jones in?"

"Which Mr. Jones?" was the reply. "There are 27 Joneses in this college."

"Mr. Jones, of Cardiff, sir."

"There are 18 Joneses from Cardiff," exclaimed the
