

"I understand that."

"And do you think you can do it?"

"I know I can."

"On Saturdays we often give as many as six shows."

"All right."

"And on some holidays we give a performance every hour."

The young man hesitated. "In that case," he finally said, "I must have one thing understood before I sign a contract."

What's that?" asked the manager.

"No matter how rushing business is at the museum," the Egg King replied, "you gotta gimme time enough to eat my regular meals at the hotel."

TAFT NEEDED TWO SEATS.

When ex-President Taft was secretary of war he used to go to the ball games quite often. It was his custom to buy two grand-stand tickets, so that he could have plenty of room to spread out and not feel cramped. One day however when he handed his coupons to the usher, the latter looked perplexed and remarked: "Sorry, but you will have a hard time occupying these two seats—for they are on opposite sides of the aisle."
