LOCAL AND OTHERWISE

In the November number of 'The Southern Workman we notice an Indian Legend entitled, "The Origin of Mount Baker and Mount Rainier." The legend is from the Indian tribes of the northwest, and it is beautifully told, and the story is illustrated by a number of most interesting half-tones. The writer of this legend is Dr. Charles M. Buchanan, superintendent at Tulalip, Wash. The author possesses a charming narrative and descriptive style of writing and the legend in question is in his best vein.

We are pleased to report the birth of a girl baby at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clardy on November 19. The little girl has been named Helen.

On November 20th we were pleased to be visited by Supt. Hall, of Warm Springs, Oregon. He is a wide-awake gentleman and it was a pleasure to all of us to have him visit our school.

During the past few weeks Mr. Westley and his detail of boys have been busy digging and gathering our large crop of potatoes. Not only do we raise large crops of potatoes, but large potatoes as well.

On November the 25th Supervisor H. G. Wilson made a brief visit to the school while enroute from Portland to his home in Roseburg, Oregon. Mr. Wilson is a man who has had much experience in the service.

In every way our Thanksgiving was memorable, from the program in the Auditorium the night before to the dance in the evening following the observances of the day. Christmas now occupies a good part of the time in the student mind. Long live Christmas!

Supt. Wadsworth was in Portland recently on school business, going from there to Forest Grove. He was accompanied by his family. We regret to state that for the past few weeks he has not enjoyed his usual good health, although not seriously ill and still attending to his duties.

Recently the approach of Christmas has occupied the "ways and means committee." On December 6th a pay dance contributed quite a bit to the Christmas fund. The band furnished good music for this occasion. The hat was passed among the various employes who generously contributed for the occasion. We are assured a memorable Christmas.

In the Y. M. C. A. Bulletin of Haskell Institute for November there appeared an article entitled "Religious Life Among My People." This was a "first prize" essay and was written by Patsy Barrett who is now in the Junior Commercial class at that institution, but who graduated from Chemawa last June. The article in question is a most worthy effort and we are pleased to note Patsy's success.
