

There are so many crows here, one wonders where they come from; they crow all day and do not seem to care whether they ever find time to look for worms. Then at night we wonder where the countless numbers of frogs live. They croak in all tones and at all times.

Chemawa has made many improvements since last summer. Last summer they built a new blacksmith shop and this winter they made a new silo and put up a steel water tank.

Fourth B

This is a very good school and I am glad I am going to school. I am learning right along. The children should study when they are at home so that when they go to school they will know their lessons well.

My home is in Kodiak, Alaska. It was once covered with ashes from a volcano near by, but they have it all cleared away now and it is as beautiful as before and maybe better. It is not very far from Seward and Valdez; if you look on the map you will find it. Kodiak is nearly as large as Valdez, but the only thing is, we haven't got cement walks, which I hope will soon be seen in Kodiak.

We Alaska children are glad that the government is doing something to open up Alaska. The railroads will be a great help to the country.

We are working in the orchard pruning the apple trees and doing some other odd work that needs to be done. The buds are already out.

Mr. Devol gave a very nice talk last Monday about the flood they had in Ohio last year. We enjoyed it very much. Come again, Mr. Devol.

They are going to have a government railroad in Alaska. It will be a great thing for the Alaskans.

A letter has been received from Martin Colby stating that he will be back to school soon.

Flowers are beginning to bloom everywhere on the campus. Aside from these we have roses blooming all year around. Three cheers for Chemawa!

There were a whole lot of improvements made at the kitchen during the past week.

Thomas Johansen is helping the concrete workers at the kitchen. Thomas is learning something that is worth while knowing.

Third Grade

The Nut-Crackers have their new pennant and are going to have a new song about the Orange and black.

We are now through with our citizenship papers and our teacher said
