

INTER-SOCIETY DEBATE

The inter-society debating contest closed on June 16 with a debate between the Winona and Reliance Literary Societies. The question was, "Resolved, That further restriction of immigration is desirable." The Winonas were represented by Finette Aspling and Ruth Evans on the negative. The Reliance were represented by Felix Isadore and Amidee Juneau on the affirmative.

The chairman was Mr. R. H. Kennedy of Aurora, Oregon. The judges were Miss Jones and Miss Cox, teachers in the Salem High School, and Mr. McAdam of the Willamette University. The beautiful red silk championship pennant was awarded the Winonas by a unanimous decision. This was a decided victory, as neither of the girls had ever before debated. To the Winona critic, Miss Myrta Randolph, belongs the credit. It was under her direction that the Winonas took from the Reliance the championship they had held for years.

ABOUT OUR STUDENTS

Prof. Earl Kilpatrick, principal of Salem High School, gives the following report of the Chemawa boys who attended that school during the past term. Paul Kinninook, also an Alaskan and graduate of 1913, is attending Willamette University. He, too, is doing good work and has the respect and confidence of his teachers and classmates. All of those boys will return to Alaska to engage in salmon fishing during the summer to earn money to meet their expenses in school next year, as they expect to return to resume their studies. Such grit and perseverance as these young men have shown will win success. Prof. Kilpatrick says: Salem High School counts among its best students those who have come from Chemawa. We have had during the past year four boys from there: William Jackson, Louis Paul, Frank Johnson and Nick Hatch. Every one of these fellows has been a good student and has made good grades. They have been of much assistance in student body affairs, especially in the band.

William Jackson brought three years credit from the Broadway High School of Seattle. He completed his senior year with high honors and received his diploma of graduation at the Salem Armory on June 5, 1914. Mr. Jackson is well prepared to enter any college in America. He has many well-wishers among the students and teachers of the Salem High School who expect to hear of him. His voice and instrument will be missed in the band and the German Club next year.

Louis Paul has been taking commercial work, chiefly. His grades
