

school under directions of Miss Dohse, gave the Operetta, "The Rose of Savoy," for the visitors, and on Thursday, Aug, 12, notices were posted in different places on the campus inviting all to a dance Friday evening in the gymnasium and directing each one to wear "bloomers". Indignation was expressed by some, mirth by others, but the mystery was made clear when it was made known that each one was expected to wear a full blown Chemawa rose.

Chemawa is fortunate in being located in a place where many places of interest and profit can be visited. Sunday, August 9, many members availed themselves of an opportunity to visit these places. Two automobile truck loads visited Silver Creek Falls, fifteen miles eastward in the mountains. There are several of these falls, the highest of which is 185 feet. They are noted for their beauty. Another party, interested in agriculture went to Corvallis to visit the Oregon Agricultural College, while still another went over to Newport to see the ocean. Others visited Salem, the State Capital, and Portland, the Metropolis of the State. Friday evening, August 14, an automobile load visited the electrical display on the capital grounds at Salem.

Governor West and Commissioner Sells were both scheduled for speeches, but could not attend on account of other business.

We have visited institutes from "the time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary." Some of these institutes, we thought were good, some bad; yet long afterwards we have always found that somewhere in the realm of the sub-conscious are tucked away bits of information, methods of doing things, moments of inspiration, or something of value learned that at some time or other will be of value in our life's work. Teachers often make the mistake of trying to use the methods of the instructors, or their way of doing things and when they fail, to pronounce adverse judgment on the institution where the methods were learned, when the better way would be to adapt the new methods to our own, work them into power that may be used advantageously. "The Chemawa American" hopes and believes that every Indian employee and every other worker who visited the Institute has in some way gotten power or inspiration that will make him a better worker and hence those whom he will instruct better learners, and better women and men.

Following is a schedule of the various daily sessions of the Institute:

Daily Program

A. M.

- 7:00 to 8:00 Penmanship, W. I. Staley, Capital Business College,
Salem, Oregon
8:00 to 9:00 Sewing, Miss Daisy B. Hylton
Cooking, Miss Katherine Keck