

Mrs. Redford is now working in the office in the capacity of clerk.

The sun managed to get out long at Chemawa on Groundhog Day for that sagacious little runt to see his shadow. Can you beat it?

Mr. Frank B. Laird of Chehalis, Wash., arrived at Chemawa recently and entered upon the duties of the position of mechanical drawing and wood working. We are informed that Mr. Laird is occupying the position temporarily.

Mr. S. M. Christie, Special Indian Agent, has been making his headquarters at Chemawa recently while engaged in work in this section. New Jersey is Mr. Christie's native state and he was formerly a printer and newspaper man.

Supt. Wadsworth informs us that a new position has been created here, that of assistant carpenter, and Mr. William Carrow has been appointed to the place temporarily. That Mr. Carrow will "make good" need not be said—everybody knows it.

Supt. Wadsworth and Dr. Shoemaker visited the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis a few days ago. From what we have been told both of these gentlemen felt well repaid for their trip to the great College—the greatest of its kind on the Pacific Coast. The growth of this institution during the past ten years has been nothing short of phenomenal.

The anniversaries of the days of the birth of two of our nation's greatest men—Washington and Lincoln—are again upon us. From one end to the other of our great commonwealth tribute will be paid to the memories of "The Father of His Country" and "Our Martyred President." It is right that it should be so. The world is better for both of these great men having lived.

Dr. Ferdinand Shoemaker, medical supervisor and assistant to Dr. Murphy, now has headquarters at Chemawa. The Doctor is accompanied by his wife, and daughter, Miss Doris. Mr. Singleton, who is an assistant of Dr. Shoemaker, is also of the party. Our people are pleased to welcome the entire party and express the hope that their sojourn here may prove pleasant in every way.

The gymnasium is now a real gym—there is no doubt about it. There is about everything one can imagine for athletic exercises and training installed in the building and the boys are going it at certain hours, to their hearts' content, under the supervision of Mr. Smith. Nearly all of the paraphernalia was conceived by Mr. Smith, and all of it is home-made. There is everything conceivable in the gym from traveling rings to flying trapeze. This is a move in the right direction and Supt. Wadsworth is wise in encouraging it.
