

Did any-one attempt to prey upon your credulity on the first of April?

Messers. Mann and Sanders have joined forces and engaged in taxidermy to a limited extent. They are doing well at it and their work is excellent. It takes quite a while to become skilled in work of this nature, but they are proving equal to all demands.

A large new arch and sign has been placed over the main entrance to the school. The old arch had outlived its usefulness and become so dilapidated that it was removed some time ago. Thus the new replaces the old as the world rolls on. This is the law of progress and succession. Sometimes it seems cruel, but we must bow in submission.

On March 17th the girls of the Winona Literary Society gave an entertainment in the auditorium, to which all were invited. The program was well given and was a credit to all who in any way participated. The auditorium was artistically decorated for the occasion. On another page will be found the program as rendered—it speaks for itself.

Reggie Downie, Robert Service, and Willie Service, three of our oldest printer boys, have bade us farewell since our last issue. Reggie went to his home in Tacoma, Wash., while the Service brothers departed for the fishing grounds on the Lower Columbia. They are all bright and capable young men and made good with us. Wherever they may be our best wishes follow them.

One of the latest features of the feminine life at Chemawa is a "Crochet Club." It has been in existence for some time, but we know so little about crocheting that we never had the courage to undertake a write-up, entertaining the hope that some-one "who knew" would proffer us the necessary information. About all that we are certain of is that it is a ladies' affair, and that real interest is manifested, and, furthermore, that many nice things are being created as a result of the club. The ladies of the club meet every Wednesday evening at the abode of some member and pass an evening of entertainment and profit.

The Hayesville District Sunday School Convention was held at Chemawa on Sunday, March 28th. The day was not exactly ideal, but it was not bad, and the crowd was large. All of our people who came in any way in touch with the situation did whatever they could to make things comfortable and convenient for the visitors. The sessions of the convention were held in the big gym, as the auditorium was too small to accomodate the crowd. Tables were placed on the lawn for use by the visitors during their picnic dinner. From Supt. Wadsworth to the boys and girls of the institution all did what they could to make the convention a success for the good of Chemawa. There is no gainsaying that it was a success in every way.
