

the good of all concerned.

It is well to take stock of one's self now and then. Try to become interested in the work on hand. Enter heart and soul into the business scheme which furnishes you employment whereby you may secure shelter, food and raiment. Resolve to do your best; resolve to make yourself so vital a factor that no one would think it possible to run things without you. Determine to help make the business the grandest success imaginable. When you have settle upon a course of this kind allow nothing to interfere with your purpose, for it will lead Opportunity straight up to your door. It may take a little time, but it is as certain as that two and two make four. Opportunity is the half-sister of Success.

We desire our readers to ponder these things. Let our young people bear them in mind when they shall step forth into the great wide world to begin, bare-handed, the task of attracting the attention of Opportunity. At first take what is offered that is honest and honorable and do your best. Study conditions and try and discover if Opportunity lurks about the premises. If there are absolutely no encouraging signs make up your mind to look elsewhere, but while you are on the job without a future do your best—don't kick all the time, or at all. When you quit a situation do it in a manner that will reflect credit upon yourself and leave no sore spots anywhere. Conduct yourself while on the job, or during the process of quitting, in such a way that you will fear to face no one—so act that you may return to the position if you wish.

Sobriety, courtesy, and efficiency, well mixed with industry and a determination to achieve, will make Opportunity for any-one. If the position which one holds does not promise anything worth while, look for something different. Do not hold on to a position which you feel to be an inferior one—and then whine about it all the time. Do not be afraid to work for fear that you may earn more than you are paid. It is quite certain that you will have to prove yourself worth more to the "boss" than he is paying you or else you will never get a "raise." In the larger sense, one makes Opportunity, and Success follows in the footsteps of Opportunity. The whole world is bidding for people of industry and efficiency and it is only necessary to prove one's mettle to woo Opportunity.

INDIAN CAPACITY

Many erroneous thoughts come to people who are not informed regarding Indian people and their capabilities. There are those who hold to the idea that the Indian is not naturally progressive. Never
