FRANCES E. WILLARD

Sketch of Frances E. Willard, reproduced by Earl Nuckols, Junior Class, from a lecture delivered by Mr. Taylor.

Frances E. Willard lived in Illinois. Her influence over men and women was great. She was so highly respected and honored that she was considered one of the two most prominent persons of her state, the other being Abraham Lincoln. Her statue is placed beside that of Lincoln in the "Hall of Fame," Washington, D. C., to represent the state of Illinois.

She was a woman of medium size, with fair complexion, light hair and blue eyes. She began her work as a school teacher, but soon gave up that work in order to take care of an invalid sister. After the death of this sister Miss Willard became the leader of an organization in Chicago known as "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union." In this position, where she was afforded the opportunity to speak in public, she soon excelled in oratory. It is said that the secret of her power as a public speaker was her motherly personality.

The prominent characteristics of Frances E. Willard were charity and progressiveness. Her whole life abounds with examples of her charitable disposition, while an incident that shows her progressiveness is her desire to have her body cremated after death.

ALUMNI

The Third Annual Reunion of the Chemawa Alumni Association was held on May 28th, the day set aside as Alumni Day on the commencement week schedule. A goodly number of visiting Alumni were present, who came from various parts of the Pacific Northwest.

Special arrangements were made so that they could be entertained at the Domestic Science Department. Those in charge made every effort to make their stay with us as enjoyable as possible.
