
OUR BUDGET OF LORE

LOCAL AND OTHERWISE

Chemawa's grounds are again most beautiful to gaze upon.

Miss Clara Guyette has recovered from the effect of her operation for appendicitis sufficiently to leave the hospital and return to her home in Wapato, Wash.

Willie Reddie has now forsaken violin for cello and is studying with that teacher of cello teachers, Ferdinand Conrad of Portland. He is making good progress.

Miss Dohse is on educational leave and is taking special work at the University of Washington, Seattle. At the conclusion of her course up there she will take her annual leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dillstrom came over from Perrydale, Oregon, to attend our commencement exercises. Miss Belle Dillstrom was here also, coming all the way from La Grande, Eastern Oregon.

Our baccalaureate sermon this year was delivered by Rev. William J. Cartwright, of Portland. It may be said that his text was, "There is no such word as fail." His was a splendid effort, masterly in fact, and it will not be forgotten soon by those who heard it. The address was the subject of a great deal of appreciative comment.

Just after the graduating exercises on May 27 wedding bells were heard ringing at Chemawa for Miss Alberta Brigham, a member of this year's class, and Mr. Michael MacLeod of last year's graduating class. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Kennedy and took place at McBride Hall. The young couple left immediately for their home in Polk county to become true farmers. We—all of us—wish them every joy and success in life, and a long life, too.

Nothing in the way of a social function at Chemawa during the past year has proved more enjoyable than the reception tendered the graduating class this year by Supt. and Mrs. Wadsworth on the evening of May 27. A most cordial welcome was extended to every member of the large class, and conversation, music and games helped pass the time all too quickly. Miss Agnes Wadsworth contributed some vocal numbers that were of unusual excellence, and the string quartette was pleasing as well. At the proper hour delicious refreshments were bountifully served. It was really a most memorable time for all, and host and hostess had the grateful thanks of those who were present.
