

The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. held a joint meeting on Nov. 29. Loulin Brewer was the leader, and members of both organizations took part in the discussion of the topic, Our Ideals for the Year.

A number of our carpenters have been engaged of late at the task of razing the out-door wards at the sanatorium. The greater part of the material has been saved and some of it can be utilized for a certain class of rough work which will be necessary in the future.

Not long ago Tillman Holliquilla, formerly a pupil at Chemawa, paid us a visit. At the present time he is engaged in stock-raising at Warm-spring, Oregon, in partnership with his father. Recently they sold two carloads of cattle to Portland buyers and received therefor $2,000. Everything with Tillman is progressing nicely, we are pleased to state.

A few days ago Supt. Wadsworth shared with the printing force some apples which had been sent him by Mr. William McNickle of Montana. This was a nice gift and was fully appreciated by Supt. Wadsworth — and us. Finer apples do not grow anywhere—the meat was firm and excellent in every way and there was a flavor of the finest quality.

The September Red Man contains a lengthy but splendidly written article on "The Indians of Puget Sound," by Dr. Chas. M. Buchanan, superintendent of the Tulalip school. The Doctor has an astonishingly large array of facts at his finger-ends and an even larger capacity for putting these facts on paper. There is no end to interest in his articles—all very fine.

Recently Supt. Wadsworth and the employes generally were pleased to have Judge E. A. Hutchison of the Round Valley (California) Indian School as a guest at Chemawa. On account of pressure of business he was obliged to make his sojourn with us brief. We found him a very affable gentleman and one well qualified for the position which he holds—that of superintendent at that school.

That Dr. Buchanan and all of his people, white and red, are entitled to feel proud of the success which attended the Tulalip Indian Fair held in October is a fact and we accept it as such without question. All of newspapers of the Sound country voice only praise for the fair and those who conducted it. Among others we notice a write-up in the Post-Intelligencer of Seattle, from which article we reprint the following: "So enthusiastic are the Tulalip reservation Indians over their first fair that they have decided to hold an annual fair, and they are already making preparations for next year. The display of vegetables would have done justice to any county fair, and would have received notice in a state fair, and the Indians were proud of their products."
