

quet given him in Washington City by Dr. Ernest L. Thurston, superintendent of schools. Dr. Thurston is also president of the Federated School Men's club, which has a membership limited to local school, college and university instructors and to the educational experts of the various government bureaus. Dr. Buchanan was invited to address the guests.

While in Washington City, Dr. Buchanan spent a day going through the new million and a quarter ($1,250,000) Central High school building with its principal, Emory Wilson. Mr. Wilson was a student in the Central High school when Dr. Buchanan was an instructor there, nearly a quarter century ago.

While in New York Dr. Buchanan had the pleasure of hearing Dr. David Starr Jordan lecture at Columbia University. On November 6, in New York, he was honor guest at a large dinner party given by Dr. W. E. Aughinbaugh, of the editorial staff of Frank Leslie's Weekly. Dr. Aughinbaugh was formerly a high school student under Dr. Buchanan, and later a medical student under him at the university. Among other former classmates present at the dinner were: Dr. L. E. LaFetra, associate editor of Paediatrics and professor of ortopaedic surgery at Bellevue, N. Y.; F. P. Stockbridge, editor of New York Evening Mail, and others including Shirley Eaton, son of General Eaton, late United States commissioner of education, and Lieutenant Colonel W. E. Horton of Governor's Island, N. Y.

We hope you did not forget to send her a valentine!

Mr. Brown and his orchestra have had busy times of late. They have been playing return engagements.

It seem$ almo$t ab$olutely nece$$ary to call the attention of $ome of our $ub$criber$ and adverti$er$ to a $mall matter. To u$ it i$ nece$$ary in our business, but we are too mode$t to $peak of it.

Miss Edith M. Dabb, National Secretary of the Y. W. C. A. for Indian Schools, spent a few days in Chemawa during the latter part of January. On Sunday morning she spoke at the Protestant service of work among Indian girls, and in the evening met with the Christian Association. She always brings help and encouragement to the girls, and her visits are greatly appreciated.
