

OUR BUDGET OF LORE

LOCAL AND OTHERWISE

Mrs. Schillerstrom, who had taught in the academic department during the past school year, resigned the first of May and joined her husband at Point Terrace, Oregon.

Arrangements are being made to care for a large attendance at our institute, and everyone attending will be made comfortable. Please send in your names as early as possible, and you will find quarters waiting for you upon your arrival here.

Twice since our last issue has Mr. Smith given physical culture drills and exercises with his classes. Once was for the benefit of our own "Chemawa family" and the second exhibition was for the general public. Both exhibitions were well patronized and both were meritorious to the highest degree. This is work of the greatest importance in maintaining the good health of the student body.

Easter has passed again and rabbit eggs now are scarce once more. It was a nice Easter in Chemawa in many ways. It almost rained, doubtful as the statement may sound, but not a drop penetrated our Easter bonnet, so we opine that all was lovely. One of the most interesting features of the day was a dinner given on the lawn by Miss Skipton to quite a large number of girls who are attached to her and her detail. It was a splendid success.

During the past few weeks Chemawa had for a short time, as guest, Mrs. Violet Mecum—nee Edwards. Since her marriage at the school, some five or six years ago, Mrs. Mecum and her husband have made Prosper, Oregon, their home, and there Mr. Mecum has steady employment and is doing well. Mrs. Mecum has a little girl four years old now. She was on her way to Wrangell, Alaska, for a visit of some months with friends there. That section of the country was her childhood home.

On the evening of April 24th an employees' party was given in the big gym. This was a week earlier than usual, as it took the place of the regular monthly social for May. The reason that the occasion was advanced was because Mr. Peairs and Mr. Coon were here at that time, but could not remain over until the following Monday night. A very enjoyable evening was passed. The regular monthly business meeting of the employees followed a week later and was presided over by Supt. Wadsworth.
