

cence beyond a doubt; and one of the 11 wavering jurymen, happening to meet the man who had so powerfully influenced them all, thanked him warmly for having saved them from a commission of a great injustice.

"And yet, now I think of it," he added, "you could not have known then anything about these new facts, so how could you be so sure the man was innocent?"

"Well," replied the other, "my chief reason for thinking that he did not commit the crime was that I committed it myself."

AS THE PRINTER MADE IT

A story is told of a "printer's error" that once caused consternation in a country village. An arch in the church had become dilapidated and a fund was started for its repair. Upon one occasion, so as to make the appeal more widely known, the rector had a notice regarding the arch fund printed in the village, with the result that on the following Sunday the announcement appeared in large type: "The collection today will be for the arch fiend."

CALLING HIS BLUFF

Two laborers were engaged to deepen a well which had become dry. One of them sent his mate down into the well while he sat at the top and directed the work.

He first ordered the other man to "dig a little on this side," then "dig a little on that side," until the latter, tired of both the work and the orders, exclaimed, "You sit up there and use your tongue while I