

LOCAL LORE

Marial Billings, who attended Chemawa several years ago, is teaching in Southern Oregon.

Copy for the yearly calendar is now in the hands of the printer and will be issued at an early day.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Warren and Donna Mae, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hall at dinner on Sunday.

The roofs of the various buildings have had pretty thorough repairing and are now apparently in good order.

Chemawa has an appropriation for 600 pupils and nearly that number is on the ground and others on the way and in sight.

Thanksgiving comes on the 30th this year, in accordance with the President's proclamation. Prices for turkey are soaring.

New lavatories for Winona Hall are being constructed, so arranged that there will be a lavatory conveniently located on each of the three floors.

Dr. Byrd Hunter, connected with the Alaska service under the Bureau of Commerce and Labor, spent a couple of days at Chemawa last week visiting with the Alaskan pupils.

The trees are now dropping their leaves in profusion, which, together with the rains of the past week, renders it somewhat difficult to make the campus as presentable as desired.

Friday was "Middy Day" at the Salem High School. Elwood Towner, Nick Orloff and Frank Johnson looked very fetching with their middies and bright colored ribbons.

About 125 sacks of dried prunes were turned over to the commissary department early this week by the horticultural department for issue. The balance of the heavy prune crop raised in the school orchard was sold.

The school choir of 30 voices just recently organized under the leadership of Mrs. McCrossen favored the school with a selection at Sunday evening chapel and led the general singing. The voices blended well and the harmony was good.

Ruth McNickol entertained a few of her friends last week in her room in McBride Hall in honor of the birthdays of Elizabeth Murray and Sadie Knowles. A delicious cake, which was baked by the hostess, as well as other refreshments were served.

David Billings, a graduate of Chemawa, '14, surprised his friends by dropping in one night last week. He only remained over night, however. David is a mail carrier and has a route of 103 miles. He was on his way home from Portland, where he had been buying horses for his route.

It would be well if everyone would pattern after the engineering department in regard to the "Safety First Bulletin." The American reporter saw the following notice, "Don't leave the room without first putting on your coat.—Signed, Board of Health."

What a fine lot of boys and girls compose the student body at Chemawa, and splendidly do they take up their training in all activities. Surely with such spirit displayed there will be no failures this year. Such unanimous right-doing is certainly infectious.

Mr. Smith, our physical director, is a busy man these days giving both boys and girls daily physical culture drills in the gymnasium in addition to his other duties. The "gym" is supplied with all kinds of athletic equipment and used with much satisfaction by all. Just watch the bearing of our pupils and notice how they carry themselves.

Classes of prevocational girls have been detailed for instruction in the domestic science cookery department. Twelve girls from the academic divisions will report for duty at the close of the academic session, for one week each month, thus giving six girls each day this fine opportunity. These girls will prepare and serve the evening meal, under the instruction of Miss Taylor.

Just take a stroll through the passageways in the school "root" house and view the tons of pumpkins, squash, apples, onions, rutabagas, etc., stored in the bins for winter use. The celery and cabbages are still in the ground. Then visit the fruit room adjoining the school kitchen and see the thousands of gallons of all kinds of canned fruits and vegetables. Indeed, Chemawa provides abundantly for its table.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The score of the Willamette-Mt. Angel game indicates that Chemawa will have a tough proposition in Mt. Angel next Saturday.

Captain Lane was slightly injured during the end of the third quarter, but returned to the game at beginning of the fourth quarter.

The boys at school met the football team at the Oregon-Electric station on their return from Forest Grove and gave them a royal reception.

Martin Colby accidentally cut his ear badly on Friday just previous to the game and it had to be sowed up, but it did not seem to interfere at all with his playing Saturday.

Russel Adams and James Crane of our "varsity" team, who were unable to play Saturday on account of sickness and injury, attended the Willamette-Mt. Angel game at Salem on Saturday.

In the Forest Grove game our team was penalized for off-side and holding four or five times while the Pacific University was penalized but once, and that at the very close of the game. Our boys feel that the umpire was very partial toward Pacific in his decisions.
