

SEVEN SMALL BOYS ENTERTAIN

"Come girls, you're not too small,
To make merry at Mitchell Hall;
Seven are we, from duties free,
So we invite you our guests to be."

Seven lucky little girls, and Superintendent and Mrs. Hall received this invitation from seven of Mrs. Loos' house boys who entertained with a delightful party last Wednesday evening. The Halloween scheme was carried out effectively with autumn leaves, jack-o'-lanterns and portieres of red apples. Game boards and fish ponds furnished much amusement as well as the ever enjoyable Halloween stunts. Delectable refreshments consisting of salad and wafers, cocoa, ice-cream and three kinds of cake, were served by Mr. and Mrs. Loos at small tables.

The seven little hosts assisted in Mitchell Hall during the summer Institute. They were so efficient that a good many "tips" were received. This sum they placed in the hands of Mrs. Loos, who so kindly and efficiently arranged this enjoyable little party for the boys.

LOCAL LORE

Andrew Charles, a Chemawa ex-student, visited Mr. Brown last week. Andrew is making good as a blacksmith at St. Xavier, Montana. He secured his training at Chemawa.

Paul Smartlowit, a former Chemawa student, who since leaving Chemawa graduated from Cushman, has now returned to his old school to finish his course and to take up vocational engineering.

Archie McDonald is taking a High School course at the Leon High School, Montana. Archie was one of our all around athletes while attending Chemawa. We are glad to hear that he is continuing his education.

The girls of McBride Hall are very sorry indeed to lose Marian McCluskey. Marian has been called home on account of the illness of her mother, but expects to return to Chemawa as soon as she can be spared at home.

A formal inspection of the Winona Hall and McBride Hall quarters on Sunday morning was made by the Superintendent and Matron. Much improvement is noticed in the general appearance of the rooms and dormitories of Winona. McBride Hall as usual made a good appearance.

Much rivalry between the girls of the various dormitory divisions in Winona Hall has been in evidence lately. A prize was offered for the best kept dormitory, and the smaller girls of the school won the decision. The girls of room number 14 secured the decision, although number 12 was a very close second.

The first opening session of the literary society took place Friday evening. Recitations by Marie Garrett and Nellie Metcalf were well rendered. The two readings by Elmer Therriault and Earl Nuckolls showed ability and training. The chorus by the school choir and the orchestral number of the orchestra were fine.

George Wasson, of Coos Bay, a former Chemawa student, and later a graduate of Carlisle, visited Chemawa last week on his way home from Washington, D. C., where he has been in the interest of his people at Coos Bay. He leaves for Missoula, Montana, in the near future to work in the behalf of the Montana Indians. George was a schoolmate of Mr. Smith's at Carlisle.

BOX SOCIAL

By far the most interesting and enjoyable function held at Chemawa this year was the unique box social in the gymnasium on Saturday night. In order to raise funds by which the smaller children of Winona Hall and Small Boys' Building may be supplied with ample presents on Christmas, about 150 of the larger girls constructed artistic boxes filled with good things for the inner man and an equal number of boys purchased the boxes, sharing the contents with the donor. Marshmallows, coffee, doughnuts, sweet cider, sandwiches and cake were sold and altogether a goodly sum was raised.

Much credit is due to the girls for the interest taken in preparing the baskets, as well as to the boys for their willingness to buy. We are also indebted to Mrs. Smith, assisted by Miss Skipton, Mrs. Brewer, Miss Taylor, Miss Peters, Mrs. Teabo, Mrs. Loos, Mrs. Estabrook and Mrs. Sanders for their aid in making the evening such a decided success.

FOOTBALL

The second team travelled to Salem on Saturday and easily defeated the high school eleven. Chemawa has a strong second team and proved it in this game, playing together as a unit. The score was 12 to 0.

From the kick-off Chemawa carried the ball to the center of the field. By end runs, line plunges, and delayed passes the second team baffled the Salem High school boys and soon planted the ball on Salem's five-yard line; but—lost it on a fumble.

Both touch downs were made in the second half. Chemawa failed to kick either goal.

The members of each team deserve much credit for the clean, hard, game they played.
