LITERARY SOCIETIES

Excelsior Society

The Excelsior Literary Society held their regular meeting in the school building on November 2. Vice-president Robert Downie took the chair. After registration of members and other business was disposed of the following program was rendered:

Opening remarks, Robert Downie; recitation, Henry Campbell; song, Henry Campbell, Francis Boyce, Edwin Rousselle, Julius Frank; reading, Edwin Rousselle; current events, Logan Fann; music, Wallace Beebe. After the program several yells were given then we adjourned.—Edwin Rousselle, Reporter.

Winona Society

After the completion of business left over from the previous meeting, the president administered the oath to new officers and required the new members to repeat the oath of allegiance. She then read the constitution to the society, explaining and emphasizing certain parts. The remaining part of the hour was filled by volunteer numbers from Doris Hoxie and Thelma Green. The spirit of loyalty which always prevails in this organization of girls manifested itself in the earnestness with which the program committee took up its new work.

Nonpareil Society

The president called the house to order and the secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. Old business was renewed and new business transacted, then the following program was rendered:

- Whittier Quotations - - - - Ten Girls
- Recitation—Autumn Thoughts - - - - Effie Davis
- Biography of Whittier - - - - Myra Rauzi
- Piano Solo - - - - Alicia Kimball
- Current Events - - - - Ten Girls
- Piano Solo - - - - Edna Willett

After the program was finished the girls gathered around the piano and practiced society songs until it was time to go.—M. Rauzi, Reporter.

Reliance Society

The regular meeting of the Reliance Literary Society was called to order by its president, Frank Peratrovich on November 2d, at the usual hour in room six. The reading of the minutes was dispensed with. Next was the election of officer for reporter, and Wade Minthorn having received the majority of votes was declared elected. No further business being presented the following program was rendered: Opening address, President Peratrovich; declamation, Roy Nuckolls; impromptu, "A Summer's Experience", Joe Bettles; guitar solo, Tom Phillips; songs, Society. After a few remarks by various members the house adjourned. Mrs. Pendergrass, the official visitor, was present.

EMPLOYES' SPOOK PARTY

ten telegram; Mr. Henderson for most speedily written telegram; Mr. Downie for recognizing the identity of owners of feet; Miss Woods for inability to blow out the candle of fate.

Altogether the function was a most delightful one, and the committee who so cleverly planned the affair and carried it out so well deserve much credit. The committee consisted of Mr. Roberson, Miss Wooten and Miss McFadden, assisted by Mrs. Hall.
