REPORTER'S NOTES

By Allan Shepard

Mrs. Rose Hamilton arrived last week for a visit with her daughter, Rose.

The carpenters have just completed a new grandstand on our athletic field.

The engineers have just completed the task of painting the boilers in their department.

Miss Carter was sick and unable to look after her classes for a couple of days last week.

During the past week the plumbers repaired the bathing appurtenances at Brewer Hall.

William Kennedy was a guest of the girls of the Junior class at dinner one day last week.

Carl Madsen, a small boy who has been in the hospital for some time, is now getting better.

The vocational sewing classes are working on dresses for exhibition during Commencement.

The windows at the Small Boys' Home received repairs last week at the hands of the carpenters.

The wooden parts of the wheelbarrows in use in coal handling are being repaired at the blacksmith shop.

The first year vocationals in the sewing department are working on the graduating dresses for the girls of the senior class.

The various matrons have enacted a very strict law to protect the flowers about the grounds. It has our unqualified endorsement.

The Juniors enjoyed a picnic during the early part of last week. From what we learn nothing occurred to mar the joyousness of the occasion.

The carpenters are making a new chicken house near the big kitchen. There were too many rats at the old place, hence the new structure.

The photographer was abroad at Chemawa last week, at which time he took a number of pictures, including McBride Hall and the auditorium.

The student teachers had a party on Wednesday night—all went as seven-year-olds. There not being a single boy invited we fear that the occasion was not so joyous as it might have been. Still, you never can tell.

The Y. Ws. are intending to give an entertainment for the good of their association. Next Monday is the date set and it is the intention to give you about $5 worth of "good time" for 15 and 25 cents. Does not that appeal to you?

The Excelsiors have elected the last outfit of officers for the year: Irving Shepard, president; Paul Liphart, vice-president; George Lekanoff, secretary; Jacob Mynuk, treasurer; Logan Fann, reporter; and Percy Minesinger, sergeant-at-arms.

SEVENTH GRADE ENTERTAINS

The first year vocational class proved themselves delightful entertainers last Saturday evening on the occasion of their annual party. This is a large class and with their many guests comfortably filled the floor of our spacious gymnasium. The gym was aglow with spring blossoms and with the effective draping of class and school pennants, together with greenery and the flower-bedecked white lattice work screens, rendered the appearance of the room very pleasing.

The class president, James Choate, headed the reception line while Gertrude Todd and Josephine Corbett escorted the guests to their seats. Each guest upon entering was given an artistic card containing the program for the evening. The young people of the seventh grade were most solicitous in looking after their guests, and an unusually good time was had by all.

Delicious refreshments very daintily served was one of the many pleasant features of the evening. Elmer Therriault and Charles Buchert delivered stunts from the platform. The class in giving this altogether successful affair was ably assisted by Miss Hendrix, the instructor. The first year vocationals as a whole have done well this year and great things are expected of them in the future.

CHEMAWA DROPS ONE TO "PEN"

The penitentiary team, with Snyder in the box, scored a victory over our boys last Saturday, of 8 to 1. Manager Keller's boys took advantage of the erratic fielding of Ezekial at short, and concentrating their attack on that one weak spot, crossed over five runs in the first inning before Coach Hauser sent him to the bench.

Lawrence pitched a brilliant game throughout, with the boys playing a fairly good ball, but woefully weak with the stick. Asbill behind the bat played his usual good game, also did some nice base running, only to be stranded at third when the others failed to hit at the proper time.
