LITERARY SOCIETIES

Reliance

At the regular meeting of the Reliance Society on Friday evening the following program was rendered: Song, society; accordion solo, George Nix; reading, James Greeley; jokes, Elmer Therriault; steel guitar solo, Oliver Hunter; songs and yells, Members. After our advisory member, Miss McDowell, gave her report we adjourned.

Excelsior

The regular meeting of the Excelsior society opened Friday evening with President Fann in the chair. Some important business was transacted, after which the society opened the program. Peter Rasmussen gave a recitation and Reginald Downie a stump speech. George Lekanoff and George Barrett rendered a vocal duet, after which we had a debate, "Resolved, That all Boys Should Study Domestic Science." Lloyd Tillotson and Joseph Bonner represented the affirmative side and George Chya and Jesse Morgan the negative. Miss Hendrix, advisory member, presented her report and the society adjourned with society songs and yells.

Winona

An opening song by Catherine Lambert, Maude Heay, Ramona Tripp and Anna Belgarde was so well done that the girls were forced to respond to an encore. Jessie Cleveland's recitation was well chosen and Lillian Gauthier and Rose Gray gave a bright little comedy. The humor-stories were supplied by Amelia Ladderoute; Annabelle Woods and Henrietta Chamberlin sang some popular ballads and Hattie Martin gave a talk in an original way. Veltha Frazier had the impromptu speech. A prophecy by Anna Host was one of the best numbers of the evening. After a quick business meeting and a song session the society adjourned.

SENIOR NOTES

It is rumored that in a recent try-out Tacoma Snyder was a champion speller.

The class period program was good and the business session snappy on Friday.

Daniel Orton had charge of the Mitchell Hall battalion on Wednesday evening.

The Seniors think that Harriet Cain adds much of both music and grace to the orchestra pit.

Roy Nuckolls, who recited so well and also represented the Arrow Collar on the Y program on Thursday, is a Senior.

What Senior boy was it who carefully placed his books on the hook in the hall and carried his cap into the schoolroom?

A '21 cap has wandered away. It was last seen at the girls' gym class. It is understood the Physical Director is looking for it.

The girls of '21 are becoming very faithful to gym class. The reason is: No gym, no credit; no credit, no graduate—so it is said.

The Class of '21 gave William Frazier a small engraved medal as an appreciation of the honor he won for the class last year in declamation.

The second semester is not far off! We know, for we've completed our physiology and are beginning review, and that means semester exams.

The Senior cheer-leader has been overworked so that she had to have throat treatment last week, but she is expected to be back in fine voice by next meeting.

This week the girls who have had such a splendid term in the domestic science are beginning work in the domestic arts. They are looking for a splendid period in sewing also.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE NOTES

Tacoma Snyder is cook this week and is serving some very appetizing meals.

The high school lunches are prepared by Ellen Beall, who is taking much interest in their preparation.

Beulah White, Ola Fairweather, Mabel Blodgett and Ellen Beall were honor students in the domestic science last semester.

We wish to thank the boys and girls who attended the dinners at the domestic science, thereby helping to make improvements in that department. The following menu was served: Tomato soup, salted wafers, steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, string beans, fruit salad, salted nuts, chow chow, tomato relish, strawberry preserves, strawberry sundae, and cake.

Lucy Craig arrived from Cordova, Alaska, to attend school here. She is a half sister of Anna Miller. Catherine Goodlite also arrived from Chitina, Alaska.
