NONPAREIL OPEN SESSION

The annual Nonpareil Society public entertainment was given last Friday night. It was handled on the order of a regular meeting with President Eleanor Hauk, and secretary, Nancy Mathison, occupying their customary seats on the platform and the young lady members of the society grouped in front of the stage. The various numbers were well delivered, having had careful drilling. It was a very enjoyable event. Following is the program:

COMMENT

"I think it's so nice," said a new girl, "to begin to get ready for Christmas so long before hand. It gets you all stirred up with the Christmas spirit."

Two small girls were talking:

"I bet this school is nicer than that other school you went to; it wasn't as big."

"I bet it was; it was bigger."

"You didn't have as good apples."

"I did, too—better."

"You didn't have as much fun."

"Betcha—had more. Had everything better."

"I know something you didn't have. You didn't have any wreck on the railroad."

That settled it in Chemawa's favor.

Mary Emily Hauser had been at school a day when she said to Miss Orr: "I have a brother, but he doesn't know much; he's never been to school."

Y. M. AND Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Junior Y. W. C. A. is already beginning work on a Christmas program. These programs are a source of much delight to the little girls and are always enjoyed by the employees who are their guests on these occasions.

W. P. Walters, Secretary of the Marion County Y. M. C. A., was a visitor at the Chemawa Sunday School, last Sunday morning, in the interest of the Willamette Valley Older Boys' Conference, which meets in Salem the last of this week. About 400 boys are expected as delegates at this meeting, and Chemawa, through its Sunday School and Y. M. C. A., is entitled to six representatives.

The Y.W.C.A. was especially favored Sunday afternoon with a talk by Mrs. Brickell. A roomful of girls listened attentively as Mrs. Brickell spoke to them of their responsibilities in their home communities, in showing to their friends and relatives that their education has really been worth while. Mrs. Brickell then mentioned some of the many opportunities that Chemawa affords its girls for developing responsibility, happiness, cheerfulness, promptness and honesty. A guitar solo by Nancy Mathison added to the pleasure of the afternoon.

OUR CHAPEL SERVICE

During chapel exercises last Sunday evening the orchestra played a "Caprice" by Kline, Maude Craig sang "Smilin' Through" by Penn, George Barrett gave as a 'cello solo "Pastorale" by Wetzel, the choir sang "Outside the Door" by Parks, and Supt. Hall gave a most valuable talk to those assembled, particularly to students, in which he set forth certain phases of school life. He spoke of tendencies, good and bad, and pointed out many pitfalls and rocks that beset the pathway which youth must travel on the road to success. He gave a splendid lesson.

Winona

The Winona Literary Society adjourned to attend the open session of the Nonpareil Society. It was a good program and the Winonas were glad to sing "Hail, Hail, the Nonpareils; they're the girls who do things well."
