

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Irving Shepard, one of our high school students, was on the sick list last week.

Barthel James, until recently a student at the Grand Junior, has entered the senior high school.

While waiting for the school train each morning the boys are happily engaged in singing modern and popular songs.

Fred Wilder received the highest grades in all his subjects in the recent mid-semester examinations. He received three "1's" and one "2."

Logan Fann, one of our high school students, was sent as a delegate from the Y. M. C. A. to Albany last Sunday. He reports having enjoyed his trip.

We are proud of the good grades received by our students in the Salem schools. Logan Fann is proud of his 92 in geometry since his nearest competitor got only 80.

The university, business college and high school students are much indebted to Miss Skipton and her detail for the warm supper given them each day in spite of the fact that they return late.

Elwood Towner is using his psychology to great advantage in making mental tests upon our high school students and also in giving lectures. Elwood spends hours studying and discussing psychology.

SENIOR NOTES

Tacoma Snyder is about the campus and is looking well.

Dan Orton is doing splendid work in the tailor shop. At present he is busy making a lady's coat.

The class of '21 appreciates the very fine services given them by the sophomore girls at the Valentine party.

The way Roy Nuckolls studies one would think he was reading a dime novel. But he is not. It's that algebra.

The girls who hope to graduate are eagerly studying cook books and menus preparing for the demonstration dinners.

The senior party is something of the past, but that does not end our rush of work with the declamation contest staring us in the face.

Figure up your averages, seniors. Grades and report cards are due again this week. Only a few more chances to earn those diplomas.

We are sorry to hear that Beulah White, who went home for a Christmas visit, has been ill so long that she will not be able to return and finish with her class.

The history themes must be interesting from the way the senior boys have been looking through that history and the librarian reports that the seniors have carried off half the reference books.

LOCAL

A number of Chemawa employes attended grand opera in Portland on Saturday evening.

Bright, sunny days this week, the first since early in the fall. The gardeners and farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather.

What may be the last basketball game of the season at Chemawa will take place on Saturday night next on our court between South Parkway and Chemawa. The visitors are said to be the fastest and most expert hoopers in Portland and a good game is expected.

Dr. W. T. Milliken, of the First Baptist Church of Salem, was the speaker at the Protestant preaching service last Sunday afternoon. Dr. Milliken's talk was very interesting and helpful. Special music for the afternoon was furnished by a double quartet from the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.

Eleven of our veteran service men celebrated Washington's Birthday with a special dinner prepared and served under the direction of Miss Skipton in the students' dining hall. The table was decorated with national colors. Our ex-soldiers pronounced the dinner splendid in every respect.

Mrs. Harry Miller, of Portland, spent the last weekend at Chemawa visiting former schoolmates and friends. She is known here as Julia Mills and graduated with the class of 1918. She was married to Mr. Miller about a month ago. The couple spent their honeymoon visiting Mr. Miller's people in Washington and are now located at Portland where he is engaged in the mill business.

The Pathe News representative visited Chemawa not long since and secured a battery of views showing the various departments, campus, the band and a couple of companies of boys while at drill. This story is now being reproduced on the screen throughout the country and was exhibited at the Liberty Theatre this week. A number of our students and employes attended on Monday and Tuesday and pronounced the views excellent.

The Washington Birthday entertainment given by the school last evening was up to the mark and aroused a good deal of favorable comment and patriotic fervor. The service flag containing over two hundred stars which has hung on the east wall of the auditorium since early in the war and was placed there by George Barrett and Robert Downie, was taken down by our ex-service men during the evening and placed in a glass case in our library.

Miss Eakin and the Y.W.C.A. quartette went into Salem on Friday morning for the purpose of presenting the Protestant religious work at Chemawa before the Inter-denominational Missionary Society at its annual meeting. At the close of this meeting several of the churches of Salem volunteered to give to us four dozen chairs to assist in furnishing our new Y.M. and Y.W.C.A. rooms. This generous gift will make it possible to occupy these rooms at an early date.
