

LOCAL

Supt. and Mrs. Hall spent Friday and Saturday of last week in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Jaquins drove down from Portland on Saturday, spending the week-end with Superintendent and Mrs. Hall.

The slough west of the road has been filled with water throughout the entire winter and the small boys have used it to the fullest extent to ply the various rafts made for the purpose.

Someone has said that there are two seasons here. July and August, and the balance of the year, the former most delightful while the latter is continuous rains. This is not true as a rule, but the present year has certainly proved the remark.

The Winona open session will take place Friday evening. "An Outsider" is the name of the play and judging from the printed program it will be a splendid evening's entertainment. The cast is made up of Winona's best talent, which speaks well for the success of the open session.

Chemawa appreciates the splendid service given this winter by the heating and power plant department. Mr. Chamberlin and his assistants have certainly been faithful and the continuous flow of live steam to the various buildings, and the electric lights, bespeak capability and a knowledge how to produce results of a higher order than was heretofore known at Chemawa.

Nancy Mathison, a senior, gave her domestic science demonstration last week in the shape of a dinner to eight members of the faculty. This five-course dinner was most appetizingly cooked and daintily served. Her table decorations consisted of spring flowers. This dinner reflected much ability on the part of Nancy and showed the splendid training received in our domestic science department. The guests were Superintendent and Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Sherman, Mr. Bent, Mrs. Brickell, Miss Eakin, Miss Judd, and Miss White.

REMEMBERED BY ALL

As the years go by February 28th becomes more and more a memorable date at Chemawa. It marks the anniversary of Supt. and Mrs. Hall's wedding and the occasion is one never allowed to pass unobserved by employes or students at our school.

Just before supper on Monday evening while the band played the entire student body assembled before the residence of this estimable couple to serenade them, to give them 'rahs, to wish them innumerable "returns of the day," and through Robert Downie to present them a beautiful silver cake dish with the words "Chemawa, 1921," engraved in the center. Robert made a nice heart-felt little presentation speech, to which Supt. and Mrs. Hall both responded most feelingly.

In the evening another surprise awaited Mr. and Mrs. Hall, for the employes took their turn at surprises and called at their home en masse. The employes had a bounteous supply of delicious refreshments and hearts full of good wishes with them and it is needless to state that a never-to-be-forgotten evening was passed. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are always ideal as host and hostess and were at their very best on this occasion. At the proper moment Mr. Iliff in behalf of the employes made a few fitting remarks in presenting them with a token of esteem from the employes—a beautiful hammered silver vegetable dish. It was received in the spirit in which it was presented—no more can be said.

The writer of this knows both Supt. Hall and Mrs. Hall so well that he realizes their inability in the face of occasions of this nature to voice their feeling and appreciation to the fullest. They are always grateful and appreciative of the love and esteem in which they are held.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

It begins to look like spring. We are glad, but we fear an epidemic of spring fever.

Eleanor Hauk, one of our students at Salem High, will enter the Dramatic Contest March 11th.

Miss Roberts will hold a reading class for the advanced students once a week. We will begin with some selections from Tennyson.

Five of our ex-service men are attending University and business college in Salem. One was a soldier, one a marine and three were "gobs."

It is reported that Hattie Martin and "Jeff" Davis are making good progress in high school. Hattie's best grade is in Latin, while "Jeff" is a commercial course shark.

Last week our college and high school students were interested in seeing the Pathe pictures showing Chemawa and its various departments. Five of our boys are members of the Chemawa band and that, too, showed up well.

SENIOR NOTES

"Show your spirit in your step;

Seniors, seniors, where's your pep?"

Those algebra exercises which interested us so much last month were graphical representations instead of geographical.

Each evening sees the senior boys out circling the track, getting in trim for the class meet which will come off later in the season.

If you see any seniors out in the woods upon a stump, raving, don't think they are crazy. They are just doing a little rehearsing. Contest!

Nancy Matthison represented the senior class at the Whitman-Willamette game recently in Salem. She and Miss Judd made the trip to root for Willamette.

Nancy Matthison can breath a sigh of relief now as her demonstration dinner is over. A good report (and that is all) of this dinner has reached the boys.

Clarence Edwards is still keeping up his high standing. No other senior has been able to rival him so far. He has been on the honor roll every month this year.

Potatoes, beans, corn and onions have been the main topics in botany. But remember to clear away the onions before leaving the school room; their fragrance grows stronger with age and heat.
