

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

(Continued from page 1)

is respect for the feelings of others and consideration of their circumstances. A real gentleman or lady will avoid everything which may give pain even to the humblest and weakest, nor will they use their power to the disadvantage of another. Learn to think of others before thinking of yourself and you will have friends enough and of the best. Why, the happiness of our lives is made up of little courtesies, little kindnesses, pleasant words, genial smiles, a friendly letter, good wishes and good deeds. Courtesy and honor are inseparable. Is not honesty everywhere recognized as one of the very highest traits of character?

To have done no man or woman a wrong; to walk and live rightly is to be a true man or woman. We speak of a gentleman: To be gentle is not enough; he must also be a man; he must have the courage of his convictions.

So after all, reader, true politeness lies in being tender, loving, self-denying, honest and strong. Beyond doubt these attributes will make themselves felt and observed in your personal appearance.

ITEMS FROM THE TRADES

Did you see the wreck of the "Cinder Express"? Ask the farmers about it.

Miss Skipton wishes to thank the carpenters and painters for the fine work which they did recently in her private room.

Steps are being taken for another interesting demonstration by the nurses at the hospital. Trays for dietetic purposes will be given special attention.

The engineers have decided to make more grass grow in front of the power plant and the freshly turned yard looks as though they would succeed. The recent work on boiler settings and fronts has improved the efficiency of the boilers and they are ready for further duty.

The plumbing department is at work at present on alterations of the water system. They have been responsible for a greater distribution of the heat at Chemawa the past winter. Many radiators were replaced by heating coils in the various buildings, greatly increasing their comfort.

The carpenters have installed all the machinery received from the Cushman School. Much more work can be accomplished with this additional equipment. The drives to the new double garage are nearing completion. This building was built entirely by the students of the carpentry department and the drives will be the product of their labor, with the help of the truck crew.

The machinist apprentices are doing some nice work on lathes at present, as well as such outside work as comes from other departments. This department has already saved the school considerable money in repairs to machinery.

The boys of the forging shop are greatly interested in their work of auto repairing. Several cars have been overhauled there recently and now that we have a door sufficiently wide and high to accommodate the largest cars we can do more toward getting them inside.

The harness makers have more harness ready for shipment and still more in the making. Shoes are going out and they say that it keeps them busy to reverse the old saying of "All going out and nothing coming in." The way they read it is, "Keep all going out that keeps coming in." They surely deserve credit for their steady supply of mended shoes.

DECLAMATION CONTEST

Last Friday evening representatives of the various upper-grade classes of the school engaged in a most meritorious declamation contest. Following is a list of the contestants, their subjects, and their grades academically:

The Battle of Waterloo	- - -	Robert Chamberlin
		Eighth Grade
Hiawatha's Childhood	- - -	Ione Henry
		Ninth Grade
Spartacus to the Gladiators	- - -	Lewis Colby
		Tenth Grade
The Little Fellow	- - -	Anna Lee Thomas
		Seventh Grade
Rienzi's Address to the Romans	- -	Elmer Therriault
		Ninth Grade
The Highwayman	- - -	Mabel Blodgett
		Tenth Grade
Caldwell of Springfield	- - -	William Moses
		Eighth Grade
A Voice from a Far Country	- -	Annabelle Woods
		Seventh Grade
Emmet's Vindication	- - -	Roy Nuckolls
		Tenth Grade
Nathan Hale	- - -	Rebecca Carpenter
		Eighth Grade
Americanism	- - -	Dewey Sampson
		Ninth Grade
The First Settler's Story	- - -	Carrie Anderson
		Eighth Grade
The Old Trapper's Christmas Dinner	-	Lloyd Clements
		Seventh Grade
Webster's Salutation to Veterans of Bunker Hill	- -
		William Frazier
		Tenth Grade
The Poor Fisher Folk	- - -	Victoria Sandsaver
		Ninth Grade