SENIOR NOTES

Just wait till you see us senior boys in our new graduating suits. Say, they surely are going to be swell!

Those little extras we find at the senior table prepared by the senior girls are appetizing. Our hats are off to the senior girls.

Ellen Beall is said to be the champion biscuit maker in the class and William Frazier comes across with the butter at those table treats.

Sunday is no day of rest for the senior boys. With only about twenty more school days ahead of them, they are putting in their spare time on their books. The rush season is now on.

The class prima donna, Nancy Mathison, held the audience spell-bound, at Sunday evening's chapel service, with a song entitled "Icicles." This is Nancy's second appearance and we are certainly proud of her.

ITEMS FROM THE TRADES

The carpenters will soon have the brooder house under roof.

A supply of clear spruce was received this week for the manufacture of new ladders for the Fire Company and places needing them.

Some nice coach cushions are being made by the leather working shop and will not only be pleasing to the eye but restful to the body as well.

The painters are working on Brewer Hall now and will soon have the second coat completed. At present they are painting the kitchen at the Superintendent's residence. The pre-vocational boys of the detail have been busy giving the railings and lattice work about the lawns an additional coat of green.

Recently our small truck had an axle sheared off next the differential gear. The machine was taken to the auto shop and the broken parts removed by the boys of that detail, a new shaft was made in our machine shop, and the same detail replaced the shaft in the truck and it is now in service again. We saved considerable money and gained some very valuable experience by this work.

The new screens for McBride Hall will be placed next week.

An additional window and new frame have been placed in Winona Hall.

Boys, are you "on the job?" Are you one of the kind that the boss can depend on? Do you expect to work for wages? Can you hold a job and watch the clock at the same time? Can you leave your work and look out the window and expect to get as much done as you would get done if you let the time and the things outside take care of themselves? "There is no sentiment in business." The average employer does not care particularly who you are, where you came from, or how much you think you know. His view is largely: Can he do the work? Does he stay at his job? Is he making money for me? This school is the place to get the "steady" habit. Think it over.

OUR CHAPEL SERVICE

Our chapel service last Sunday evening was of more than ordinary interest. The orchestra played a "Spanish Serenade" by Allen, Nancy Matthison sang "The Icicle" by Bassett, George Barrett gave as a 'cello solo the "Song of India" by Rimsky-Korsakoff, the choir sang "Saints in Glory" by Gabriel, and Supt. Hall gave a very able talk during which he cited the youthful efforts of the late railroad king, E. H. Harriman, as an example of what industry and grit will accomplish under the most discouraging conditions. He said that every big thing accomplished by man in the history of the world was largely the work of pure "Grit." This is true. No matter what may be your vision you depend in large measure on "Grit" to make it materialize. It was an excellent talk.

PACIFIC COLLEGE VS. CHEMAWA

Our heavy hitters and Southpaw Bettles were too much for the P. C. nine to handle, so our team came home last Friday with the long end of the 9 to 4 score. It was easy to guess who won the game by the singing and yelling of the players as they drove up to the front entrance.

Percy Marlow, our foxy first baseman, clouted the ball for three bases the first time to bat and for two the second. Triple and two-base hits were plentiful and even Nuckolls drove one over left field for the first home run of the season, with two men on bases. Bettles sent their batters back to the bench almost at will and encountered no difficulty in whiffing three men in succession with the bases full. The all-around playing of our team seemed quite wonderful to the Newberg spectators and a few took much delight in reminding the boys they defeated us once about four years ago.
