Hattie Cayton and Laura Waun have on hand the task of raising a couple of baby cottontail rabbits. This is, indeed, a test, for these little creatures are somewhat hard to raise.

The commissioned officers of both the boys' and girls' companies are anxiously awaiting a state of weather which will permit drilling outside. It is remembered that commencement is not far off now and the time for preparing for competitive drills, etc., is short.

A section of the mechanical drawing room has been chosen as the place where various characters of work from the industrial departments of the school will be on display during our commencement. The different exhibits will be assembled here and then taken to the state fair later.

The gymnasium is a place of great importance at Chemawa. Almost every sort of entertainment is staged here, and it is the scene of nearly all athletics, the various physical culture functions and drills. We could not get along without our gym. As a matter of fact, we could keep two gyms occupied the greater part of the year.

Mr. Bent has been limping about the grounds for the past day or two and the story comes to us that he was "bumming a ride on the slop wagon when his steeds entered into a sort of chariot race. In his flight from the rapidly-moving chariot Mr. Bent neglected to place both feet on the ground at the same time, allowing one foot alone to act as a 'shock absorber,' hence the slight limp."

Mrs. Wm. H. Niland of Tacoma, Wash., spent a few days at Chemawa recently visiting her sons, Reginald and Robert Downie. At the same time Mrs. Emily J. Bennett of Kennett, Calif., a sister of these young men, visited here, she and her mother arriving together. It had been many years since these ladies had visited Chemawa and they were both pleased and surprised at the improvements they noted. It is apparent to all, both at home and abroad, that our school is growing rapidly in both spiritual and material ways.

ATHLETIC NOTES

Saturday, Pacific College will play a return game here. All will remember we defeated P. C. at Newburg 9 to 4 two weeks ago. The game today should put our team on its toes to repeat the victory.

On account of the wet weather last week our track and baseball teams were nosed out of a trip to U. of O. and O.A.C., where games were scheduled. However, Mr. Bent is arranging other dates with them.

Willamette broke even with University of Oregon in a series of games last week and they are preparing to give us a trimming here today. We can remember a long way back, but it is hard to recollect when W. U. beat us last and they will find us prepared today.

This afternoon, with Bettles and Choate on the old stand, Chemawa will dig into her old rival, Willamette University, to continue a long string of victories over her. There will be 700 lusty-lunged rooters in the stand to cheer the red and white defenders as they take the field and play their part in the game till the end. At least that's the way it always has been. The only difference between the present student body and any other we have had is that this one has more "pep" and more school spirit. Are we going to beat 'em? We'll say so.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE NOTES

Erma LaClair is cook in the B Division for this week.

Demonstrations start within a month and the Sophomore girls are busy planning what they will demonstrate.

Mr. Hall has supplied the domestic science with many dishes, including a large punch bowl and seventy-two punch glasses.

The girls of the last year's class who are now working here appreciate the many improvements made in the domestic science and they are striving to keep it in the best of condition.

As was previously stated "A" division went out for a picnic. The "B" division girls are also going to have one as soon as the weather permits. We all aim to have a good time.

Our seventh grade girls are enjoying their lessons in domestic science. They seem to enjoy the experiments as well as cooking and even the eighth grade girls appear interested in the lessons of the seventh grade. Anna Miller is teaching and takes much pleasure in it. All in all the work moves smoothly and pleasantly.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The class in poetry is reading the "Princess" of Tennyson.

Fred Wilder, one of our high school students, went to Newberg with the Chemawa baseball team and played Pacific College there.

Frank Peratrovich, our business college student, was one of the instrumental quartet members who appeared on the stage in chapel last Sunday evening.

Elwood Towner, our university student, who is a veteran backstop of the baseball nine, went down with his team to Eugene last week and played the University of Oregon team.

Logan Fann has completed lessons in business writing, and having satisfactorily passed the requirement examination, was awarded the certificate for superior ability in rapid muscular movement and commercial penmanship.
